HLA Class II Antigens Bjarte G. Solheim, Erna Moller, Soldano Ferrone, 2012-12-06 This volume deals with the structure and function of molecules that have during the last decade turned out to have a central role in immune responses Transplantation antigens were discovered and characterized by Gorer about 50 years ago and the biological basis for the unequalled complexity of their variability between individuals within a species in spite of extreme conservation between species was the subject of intense research and discussion for many years During the days of belief in immune surveillance against spontaneously developing tumors it was suggested that histoincompatibility between members of one species would prevent cancer from being a contagious disease and thus a threat to the species Immunologists involved in human transplantation had to learn and care about the complexity especially after 1967 when it was found that HLA antigens were the products of the human MHC Rejection of HLA identical sib kidney grafts was so rare even in those days that cases of rejection were described in scientific papers

Melanoma Antigens and Antibodies Ralph A. Reisfeld, Soldano Ferrone, 2012-12-06 The ever expanding research on human cancer has resulted in numerous technical and conceptual advances during the last few years Serological structural and biological characterization of human melanoma constitutes one area of research that has received considerable attention from researchers and clinicians and has generated new and exciting information In this volume we have attempted to assemble work on topics that produced some of the most recent advances We asked each author to describe and interpret his most current research and whenever possible to compare and contrast it with work of other investigators in the field We have been careful not to impose our viewpoints except in contri butions from our own laboratories since we want to provide the reader with as many divergent and sometimes opposing viewpoints as feasible Therefore we have not been overly concerned with overlaps in some individual topics We hope that this volume will provide the reader with a well balanced overview of current problems and ideas in a particular area of cancer research We wish to express our thanks to all contributors for their timely and very interesting manuscripts and we sincerely hope that the reader will enjoy this volume and benefit as much from it as we did R A Reisfeld S Ferrone La Jolla ix Contents CHAPTER 1 Immunogenetics of Melanoma RONALD T ACTON CHARLES M BALCH BRUCE BUDOWLE RODNEY C P Go JEFFREY M ROSEMAN SENG JAW SOONG AND BRUCE O BARGER 1 Introduction Volume 4 Immunopathology Noel Rose,2013-06-29 This comprehensive treatise on the reticuloendothelial system is a project jointly shared by individual members of the Reticuloendothelial RE Society and bio medical scientists in general who are interested in the intricate system of cells and molecular moieties derived from these cells which constitute the RES It may now be more fashionable in some quarters to consider these cells as part of what is called the mononuclear phagocytic system or the lymphoreticular system Nevertheless because of historical developments and current interest in the subject by investigators from many diverse areas it seems advantageous to present in one comprehensive treatise current information and knowledge concerning basic aspects of the RES such as morphology biochemistry phylogeny and ontogeny physiology and pharmacology as well as clinical areas including immunopathology cancer infectious diseases allergy and hypersensitivity It is anticipated that by presenting information concerning these apparently heterogeneous topics under the unifying umbrella of the RES attention will be focused on the similarities as well as interactions among the cell types constituting the RES from the viewpoint of various disciplines The treatise editors and their editorial board consisting predominantly of the editors of individual volumes are extremely grateful for the enthusiastic cooperation and enormous task undertaken by members of the biomedical community in general and especially by members of the American as well as European and Japanese Reticuloendothelial Societies Genetic Monitoring and Screening in the Workplace,1990 Examines the potential applications and limitations of genetic testing in the workplace Evaluates a 1989 survey of 1 500 companies 50 utilities companies and 33 unions concerning the use of genetic testing Immunologic Analysis Robert M.
