Networks of Nations Zeev Maoz, 2010-12-06 Maoz views the evolution of international relations over the last two centuries as a set of interacting cooperative and conflicting networks of states The networks that emerged are the result of national choice processes about forming or breaking ties with other states States are constantly concerned with their security and survival in an anarchic world Their security concerns stem from their external environment and their past conflicts Because many of them cannot ensure their security by their own power they need allies to balance against a hostile international environment The alliance choices made by states define the structure of security cooperation networks and spill over into other cooperative networks including trade and institutions Maoz tests his theory by applying social networks analysis SNA methods to international relations He offers a novel perspective as a system of interrelated networks that co evolve and interact with one another

Business Networks and Strategic Alliances in China addresses how knowledge transfer and innovation are interwoven within complex networks and how social capital contributes to the acquisition of crucial resources and business success in multi-type enterprises in China. The book explains how China's remarkable global economic impact in recent years has developed from foreign investment and that the dominant vehicle for economic development has been the International Joint Venture (IJV) between Chinese manufacturers and overseas enterprises. Strict guidelines on FDI mean that foreign firms have been obliged to form relationships with Chinese organizations. The authors illustrate that as a direct result the quality and nature of the relations networks and alliances forged is crucial for the success of Chinese businesses. A sophisticated empirical theoretical comparative and historical guide to understanding the nature of business networks in China is provided by this work. As such it makes a distinct contribution to the furtherance of evidence-based management theory and practice and will strongly appeal to those with an interest in management international business and Asian studies Contributions to the Theory of Games Jesús Mario Bilbao,2005 Congressional Record United States.
