Bringing together a range of international studies, Motherhoods, Markets and Consumption examines how marketing and consumer culture constructs particular images of what mothers are, what they should care about, and how they should behave, exploring how women's use of consumer goods and services shapes how they mother, as well as how they are seen and judged by others. Combining personal accounts from many mothers with different theoretical perspectives, this book explores how advertising, media, and consumer culture contribute to myths and stereotypes concerning good and bad mothers. How particular consumer choices are bound up with women's identities as mothers. The role of consumption for women entering different phases of their mothering lives, such as pregnancy, early motherhood, and the empty nest. Critical Disability Studies and the Disabled Child Harriet Cooper, 2020-03-20 This book examines the relationship between contemporary cultural representations of disabled children on the one hand and disability as a personal experience of internalised oppression on the other. In focalising this debate through an exploration of the politically and emotionally charged figure of the disabled child, Harriet Cooper raises questions both about what it means to speak for the other and about what resistance means when one is unknowingly invested in one's own abjection. Drawing on both the author's personal experience of growing up with a physical impairment and on a range of critical theories and cultural objects from Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel The Secret Garden to Judith Butler's work on injurious speech, the book theorises the making of disabled and rehabilitated subjectivities. With a conceptual framework informed by both psychoanalysis and critical disability studies, it investigates the ways in which cultural anxieties about disability come to be embodied and lived by the disabled child. Posing new questions for disability studies and for identity politics about the relationships between lived experiences, cultural representations, and dominant discourses, and demonstrating a new approach to the concept of internalised oppression, this book will be of interest to scholars and students of disability studies, medical humanities, sociology, and psychosocial studies, as well as to those with an interest in identity politics more generally. The New
