Contested values and climate change mitigation in Central Kalimantan, Indonesia

Abstract

Climate change mitigation pilot projects (REDD+ – Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and forest Degradation) affect and interact with the local population in Central Kalimantan and many other parts of Indonesia. Rather than being politically and economically neutral activities, climate change mitigation projects tend to objectify the value of carbon, land and labour, contributing to a process of commodification of nature and social relations. In this specific case study, a set of values – equality and autonomy – central to the Ngaju people, the indigenous population in Central Kalimantan, become contested in the course of the climate change mitigation project. These central values are produced in everyday activities that include mobility and the productive base – subsistence and market-based production – among the Ngaju people. On the other hand, the climate change mitigation project-related environmental practices and actions produce values that point to individual (material) benefit and stratification of the society. The aim of the paper is to draw attention to and create understanding of value production and related tensions in the efforts to ‘fix’ environmental degradation problems through the climate change mitigation pilot project in Central Kalimantan.

Introduction

This paper explores value orientations as they became contested and produced during a dispute over a climate change mitigation project in Central Kalimantan in 2012–13. In 2007, the Kalimantan Forests and Climate Partnership (KFCP), a REDD+ climate change mitigation pilot project (Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and forest Degradation)¹ designed to rehabilitate the peatlands in the area and thus reduce carbon emissions, was granted $100 million by the Australian Government to reforest 70,000 hectares of peat lands, re-flood 200,000 hectares of peat swamp landscape drained by the ¹ REDD+ is a UN-initiated programme aiming to reduce emissions from deforestation and forest degradation through forest conservation (<http://www.un-redd.org/how-we-work> Accessed 19 April 2017). For more detailed research on REDD+, see Angelsen and McNeill (2012) and Angelsen et al. (2012). For more on REDD+ in Indonesia, see Resosudarmo et al. (2014) and Howell (2013, 2014).
