Community Newspapers and the Japanese-American Incarceration Camps Ronald Bishop, 2015-06-03 Though much has been said about Japanese American incarceration camps little attention is paid to the community newspapers closest to the camps and how they constructed the identities and lives of the occupants inside Dependent on government and military officials for information these journalists rarely wrote about the violation of the evacuees civil rights Instead they concentrated on the economic impact the camps and the evacuees who would replace workers off to enlist in the military and work for defense contractors would have on the areas they covered Newspapers like the Cody Enterprise and Powell Tribune in Wyoming the Lamar Daily News and the Casa Grande Dispatch regularly published overly optimistic updates on the progress of construction the size of the contractor payrolls and the amount of materials used to build the camps Ronald Bishop and his coauthors reveal how journalists positioned the incarceration camps as a potential economic boon and how evacuees were framed as another community group there to contribute to the region s economic well being Community Newspapers and the Japanese American Incarceration Camps examines the rhetoric and journalistic approach of the local papers and how they informed the communities just outside their walls This book will appeal to scholars of history and journalism

County Chronicle Angela Thirkell, 1950 The Newspaper Press Directory, 1870 William Parsons, 3rd Earl of Rosse R. When Food Became Scarce Yixin Chen, 2024-08-15 When Food Became Scarce is about the Great Leap Famine of 1958 61 Yixin Chen adopts a grassroots level analysis to explore an existential question concerning hundreds of millions of Chinese peasants why did some peasants perish while others from the same villages facing the same collective problems of food scarcity survive Viewing the famine as a persistent ordeal Chen identifies environment and lineage as two pivotal factors that influenced the rural populace s destiny When food quotas under the Maoist communal dining system plummeted below subsistence or came to a halt most individual villagers in the mountainous regions of southern China turned to their environment for alternative sustenance ensuring their survival More remarkably across the nation more peasants united in self preservation strategies concealing grains to elude excessive state requisitions orchestrating food and crop riots and collectively combating desperation Given that the majority of Chinese villages were historically established on the foundation of consanguine relationships creating an obligation among villagers to support one another due to shared ancestry lineage emerged as a microlevel social mechanism that activated diverse forms of collective resistance In villages where peasants effectively upheld their lineage organizations and adopted self protective measures their survival rates exceeded those of villages where the enforcement of Maoist Great Leap initiatives disrupted the lineage structure leaving the communities more vulnerable When Food Became Scare reorients the famine narrative unpacking its intricacies from the perspective of the survival side History of Ray County, Mo ,1881
