Carry On Writing:

Writing Abroad Peter Chilson, Joanne B. Mulcahy, 2017-10-13 Tell me all about your trip It s a request that follows travelers as they head out into the world and one of the first things they hear when they return When we leave our homes to explore the wider world we feel compelled to capture the experiences and bring the story home But for those who don t think of themselves as writers putting experiences into words can be more stressful than inspirational Writing Abroad is meant for travelers of all backgrounds and writing levels a student embarking on overseas study a retiree realizing a dream of seeing China a Peace Corps worker in Kenya All can benefit from documenting their adventures whether on paper or online Through practical advice and adaptable exercises this guide will help travelers hone their observational skills conduct research and interviews choose an appropriate literary form and incorporate photos and videos into their writing Writing about travel is more than just safeguarding memories it can transform experiences and tease out new realizations With Writing Abroad travelers will be able to deepen their understanding of other cultures and write about that new awareness in clear and vivid prose

Building Writing Center Assessments That Matter Ellen Schendel, William J. Macauley, 2012-10-16 No less than other divisions of the college or university contemporary writing centers find themselves within a galaxy of competing questions and demands that relate to assessment questions and demands that usually embed priorities from outside the purview of the writing center itself Writing centers are used to certain kinds of assessment both quantitative and qualitative but are often unprepared to address larger institutional or societal issues In Building Writing Center Assessments that Matter Schendel and Macauley start from the kinds of assessment strengths already in place in writing centers and they build a framework that can help writing centers satisfy local needs and put them in useful dialogue with the larger needs of their institutions while staying rooted in writing assessment theory The authors begin from the position that tutoring writers is already an assessment activity and that good assessment practice rooted in the work of Adler Kassner O Neill Moore and Huot already reflects the values of writing center theory and practice They offer examples of assessments developed in local contexts and of how assessment data built within those contexts can powerfully inform decisions and shape the futures of local writing centers With additional contributions by Neal Lerner Brian Huot and Nicole Caswell and with a strong commitment to honoring on site local needs the volume does not advocate a one size fits all answer But like the modeling often used in a writing consultation examples here illustrate how important assessment principles have been applied in a range of local contexts Ultimately Building Writing Assessments that Matter describes a theory stance toward assessment for writing centers that honors the uniqueness of the writing center context and examples of assessment in action that are concrete manageable portable and adaptable
