The Autobiography Of Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Smith, Baronet of Aliwal on the Sutlej, G.C.B.

Lieutenant-General Sir Harry [Henry] George Wakelyn Smith G.C.B. Bart., 2011-03-03 The autobiography of Sir Harry Smith 1st Baronet of Aliwal is as exciting varied and adventurous as the epic life that he led He joined the British army in the 1st battalion of the 95th Rifles whose dark green uniform he was proud to wear and despite an inauspicious posting along with the disastrous expedition to Montevideo in 1807 his talents began to emerge These talents were to be brought to bear on three other continents in the service of the British A contemporary of and good friend of other famed writers of the Rifles such as Sir John Kincaid Major George Simmons and Jonathan Leach These characters appear in their varied guises throughout the narrative to give it a distinctly Rifle Brigade feeling The autobiography was originally published in two parts however in terms of phases or major periods of his life it is best to describe them in three distinct eras The Napoleonic Period covers Sir Harry s career in the 95th through out the Peninsular War fighting in the Light Division from victory to victory His Peninsular Medal when issued in 1847 came with 12 clasps Coruna Busaco Fuentes d Onoro Ciudad Rodrigo Badajoz Salamanca Vittoria Pyrenees Nivelles Nive Orthez Toulouse to represent the hard fought and glorious victories he had participated in However perhaps his most fortuitous discovery during this period was Juana his wife who having seen all here property destroyed in Badajoz came to the British lines to seek protection Sir Harry also participated in the Waterloo campaign in 1815 and provides a number of vivid anecdotes and flashes of action The second period was in the emergent British Empire in India where he trained and fought alongside native forces in the First Anglo Sikh war His victory at Aliwal on the Sutlej in which he was outnumbered almost two to one is widely regarded as the turning point of the war and led to further expansion what would become the Raj Of the battle itself the following quote might serve Mr B Genn late of the 15th Hussars who had served under him in India in 1846 and who had fired over his grave As soon as I had opened the door a fine engraving of Sir Harry greeted me It had been bought at a sale The old veteran spoke of his commander always as the dear old man When I asked him if he thought him a good General he fired up quickly Why think of the battle of Aliwal Not a mistake anywhere Smith s next major posting was to the South Africa where he played a major role in shaping the form of the colony The evident differences between the natives Boers and the administration that would flare up over the forty years since the ending of Smith s time are littered amongst the pages of his writing Of lasting fame can still be found here in the naming of numerous towns not least of which the city of Ladysmith named after his wife Juana A passionate man often wild of temper but brilliant and balanced nevertheless an anecdote reported in his autobiography gives a little flavour of the man It was a common habit with Sir Harry Smith to threaten to jump down people's throats boots spurs and all and he once on a field of battle sent a message seasoned with some fearful expletives to a colonel that if he kept his regiment so much to the front he'd have him knee haltered But the fine old General drew a line at swearing and never allowed of personal abuse Text taken whole and complete from the 1902 edition in one volume published in London by John Murray Original 800 pages Author Lieutenant General Sir Harry Henry George Wakelyn Smith BART G C B 1787 1860 Editor George Charles Moore Smith 1858 1940 Linked TOC and 16 Illustrations

Mountains So Sublime Terry P. Abraham, 2006 Picturesque immense fantastic and sublime are but a few of the words that early British travelers used to describe the nineteenth century Rocky Mountain landscape and surrounding terrain As part of a long tradition of travelers tales these British tourists explorers adventurers writers scientists artists missionaries and merchants all looked for ways to describe and illustrate places they visited in this instance the vast and strange wilderness landscape of the North America's Rocky Mountains Using both published and unpublished resources Terry Abraham weaves these observations their aesthetic and their Britishness into a refreshing and unique view of an all but vanished West In their efforts to make the Rocky Mountain West real to a readership on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean these visitors from two centuries past encouraged a growing realization that this part of the North American landscape was unique a special part of the world's natural heritage Many also tried to describe the changes that were being visited on the Rockies by onrushing progress They were among the first who cautioned against excessive human encroachment on the landscape in fact they demonstrated what might be called environmental pre awareness Twenty first century readers will discover surprising parallels between modern environmental and conservation issues and the concerns expressed by these early travelers from the nineteenth
