The Barbar Temples: without special title H. Hellmuth Andersen, Flemming Højlund, 2003 The Barbar Temples H. Hellmuth Andersen, Flemming Højlund, Carlsberg Foundation's Gulf Project, 2003 This book provides a detailed description of the three ancient temples unearthed between 1954-1961 near Barbar on the northern part of Bahrain island in the Persian Gulf Two of the structures from the centuries around 2000 BC reveal traditions going back to Sumerian temples A number of spectacular objects were found here including cylindrical alabaster jars a human shaped copper mirror handle and the most famous object from the Barbar Temples a bull's head of copper Structurally a chamber was found over a freshwater spring indicating the presence of a water cult and perhaps forging a connection to Enki the Mesopotamian god of the subterranean freshwater ocean apsu The temple apsu is well known from cuneiform sources but has been extremely difficult to identify in Mesopotamian excavations The Barbar well chamber may be such an apsu as the authors point out among their highly detailed descriptions and analysis of the finds In two volumes The Archaeology of the Arabian Gulf Michael Rice, 2002-03-11 The archaeological remains in the Gulf area are astounding and still relatively unexplored Michael Rice has produced the first up to date book which encompasses all the recent work in the area He shows that the Gulf has been a major channel of commerce for millenia and that its ancient culture was rich and complex to be counted with its great contemporaries in Sumer Egypt and south west Persia Life and Land Use on the Bahrain Islands Curtis E.
