Deep Space Flight and Communications Claudio Maccone, 2009-06-09 The majority of books dealing with prospects for interstellar flight tackle the problem of the propulsion systems that will be needed to send a craft on an interstellar trajectory. The proposed book looks at two other equally important aspects of such space missions and each forms half of this two part book. Part 1 looks at the ways in which it is possible to exploit the focusing effect of the Sun as a gravitational lens for scientific missions to distances of 550 AU and beyond into interstellar space. The author explains the mechanism of the Sun as a gravitational lens, the scientific investigations which may be carried out along the way to a distance of 550 AU and at the 550 AU sphere itself, the requirements for exiting the Solar System at the highest speed and a range of project ideas for missions entering interstellar space. Part 2 of the book deals with the problems of communicating between an interstellar spaceship and the Earth especially at very high speeds. Here the author assesses a range of mathematical tools relating to the Karhunen-Loève Transform (KLT) for optimal telecommunications, technical topics that may one day enable humans flying around the Galaxy to keep in contact with the Earth. This part of the book opens with a summary of the author's 2003 Pöck Lecture presented at the IAC in Bremen which introduces the concept of KLT for engineers and newcomers to the subject. It is planned to include a DVD containing the full mathematical derivations of the KLT for those interested in this important mathematical tool whilst the text itself will contain the various results without outlines of the mathematical proofs. Astronautical engineers will thus be able to see the application of the results without getting bogged down in the mathematics.

Planet Quest Ken Crowell, 1999 Are we alone? In 1995 planet hunters discovered the first alien solar system around a star like our own Sun. Ken Crowell tells the fascinating story of this discovery and the people who made it, then explores the possibility that one day we may have the technology to travel to different solar systems and find life.

The Hundred Greatest Stars James B. Kaler, 2006-05-07 I have always loved the stars. I watch them, photograph them, and you can hardly talk about Zubenelgenubi, then research them, write about them. Their wonder without bringing in Zubenelgenubi so they too are is that they are there not simply for scientists but for treated within one story. The Sun is not included in the all of us filling the night sky with their sparkling beauty. 100 list but instead leads the pack as Star Zero. There are as many different kinds as there are stars. Before describing the glories of the 100 stars, each an individual, the heavens give us introduction, briefs, the beginning stargazer on basic, bright ones, dim ones, near ones, far ones, the aged stellar properties and explains the astronomical, the young, those that help tell our ancient stories and terminology without which we would be continuously those nearly invisible even with the greatest of our tongue tied. Unveiling the Universe J.E. van Zyl,2012-12-06 Many books on general astronomy have been published in recent years but this one is exceptional in several respects It not only provides the complete newcomer to astronomy with a broad picture covering all aspects historical observational space research methods cosmology but it also presents enough more advanced material to enable the really interested student to take matters further Astronomy is essentially a mathematical science but there are many people who are anxious to take more than a passing interest and yet are not equipped to deal with mathematical formulae In this book therefore the mathematical sections are deliberately separated out so that they can be passed over without destroying the general picture The result is that the book will be equally useful to beginners to more advanced readers and to those who really want to go deeply into the subject for instance at university level The whole text is written with admirable clarity and there are excellent illustrations together with extensive appendices which give lists of objects of various types together with more detailed mathematical explanations All in all the book may be said to bridge the gap between purely popular works and more advanced treatises as such it deserves a very wide circulation and it will undoubtedly run to many future editions      The Observatory ,1916      The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction Anthony Boucher,J.
