Conventional Deterrence:

Conventional Deterrence John J. Mearsheimer, 1985-08-21 Conventional Deterrence is a book about the origins of war Why do nations faced with the prospect of large scale conventional war opt for or against an offensive strategy John J Mearsheimer examines a number of crises that led to major conventional wars to explain why deterrence failed He focuses first on Allied and German decision making in the years 1939 1940 analyzing why the Allies did not strike first against Germany after declaring war and conversely why the Germans did attack the West Turning to the Middle East he examines the differences in Israeli and Egyptian strategic doctrines prior to the start of the major conventional conflicts in that region Mearsheimer then critically assays the relative strengths and weaknesses of NATO and the Warsaw Pact to determine the prospects for conventional deterrence in any future crisis He is also concerned with examining such relatively technical issues as the impact of precision guided munitions PGM on conventional deterrence and the debate over maneuver versus attrition warfare Mearsheimer pays considerable attention to questions of military strategy and tactics Challenging the claim that conventional detrence is largely a function of the numerical balance of forces he also takes issue with the school of thought that ascribes deterrence failures to the dominance of offensive weaponry In addition to examining the military consideration underlying deterrence he also analyzes the interaction between those military factors and the broader political considerations that move a nation to war

Conventional Military Deterrence Wendy L. Lichtenstein,2002 During the Cold War military deterrence evolved into a mutually supportive strategic nuclear and conventional approach Conventional deterrence though was subordinate to nuclear deterrence Operationally this framework of deterrence extended to U S allies and friends and functioned with a focus on escalation and punishment Beginning in the early 1990 s as the Cold War environment dissipated the requirement to reassess U S deterrence strategy became evident Based on the changing security environment conventional deterrence could no longer remain subordinate to or implicitly attached to nuclear deterrence The purpose of this paper is to explore what factors gave rise in the years since the Cold War to a concept of conventional deterrence equal in standing to nuclear deterrence These factors are also applied to current and potential trends to examine the future of conventional deterrence in U S strategy Theoretical concepts of deterrence will serve as a foundation for discussion and analysis of the factors that have undergone fundamental changes since the Cold War Overall dynamics of the conventional and nuclear components of deterrence strategy must be balanced properly in response to the strategic environment in order to capitalize on the effectiveness of deterrence strategy Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute United States Naval Institute,2012
