Researching Children's Experiences Melissa Freeman, Sandra Mathison, 2009 This accessible book presents approaches to planning carrying out and analyzing research projects with children and youth from a social constructivist perspective. Rich contextualized examples illustrate how to elicit and understand the lived experiences of diverse young people. Data collection methods discussed in depth include drawing photography the Internet games interviewing focus groups journaling and observation. Also covered are strategies for fostering the active contributions of children in the research process navigating consent and ethical issues.

enlisting the support of parents school personnel and other gatekeepers and interpreting data Throughout the authors emphasize the need to attend to the social setting in which research with children is done End of chapter questions and exercises encourage readers to reflect on taken for granted conceptions of children and childhood and to try out the book's ideas in their own research projects Science, Learning, Identity Wolff-Michael Roth, Kenneth George Tobin, 2007 Over the recent years identity has become one of the most central theoretical concept and topics of scholarship in a number of disciplines including science education In this volume leading science educators articulate in carefully prepared case studies their theoretical perspective on science learning and identity More importantly the authors of the chapters that in the different parts of the book engage each other in a collaboratively written chapter concerning some of the central issues that have arisen from their individual studies and in particular they engage each other over the similarities and differences between their approaches This book which features detailed case studies of identity as both resource and outcomes of learners in a variety of settings will be of interest to anyone concerned with learning science in and out of schools The book also caters for readers who have wondered about how identity mediates science learning and simultaneously how engagement in science related tasks and activities mediates the emergence and development of identities The general tenor of all chapters is a cultural historical and sociocultural framework that is brought to issues of identity thereby inherently transcending the individual person and linking identity to cultural possibilities (Re)constructing Communities Jeffrey Hou, Mark Francis, Nathan Brightbill, 2005 American Book Publishing Record, 2005 Joyce in the Belly of the Big Truck; Workbook Joyce A.
