How do we know about the Ancient Greeks?

Archaeological studies suggest that people have lived in the first thousands of years. There is evidence of Palaeolithic life found in hundreds of thousands of years later, one of the earliest and most from 5000 BCE - 1450 BCE, the Minoans on the Greek island considered essential to the foundation of European civilisation. Minoans were the first advanced European civilisation. They built palaces (houses), crafted impressive tools, invented writing. The Minoans lived on the island of Crete. Across this large island, the real villages across the island by roads. We know about the Minoan civilisation called Sir Arthur Evans discovered the ruins of a palace in c.1450 BCE, the Minoan civilisation came to an end. Archaeologists happened to them, which remains a mystery.

Greek city-states

From the 8th Century BCE, Greek city-states (called polis) began to form. A city-state is like an independent country. It is made up of a city and its surrounding land. It is independent because it creates its own laws and governs itself. The most powerful city-states were Athens, Sparta, Corinth, Argos and Thebes. Although the city-states had a similar culture and language, they were not united and fought for dominance over the Hellenic region.

Athens vs Sparta

Athens was a unique place as it housed a form of democracy where citizens could vote for decisions to be made, rather than a king or group of elites making the decisions, which was more common at the time. Although there were similarities, Sparta was ruled differently from Athens. It had an oligarchy - a group of men ruled and made the laws for the city-state. Sparta believed greatly in war and battle and trained their children from a young age to become warriors. They gave women and girls more rights than other city-states and educated them.

Who ruled Ancient Greece?

Greece wasn't a single country in ancient times like today. It was made up of lots of smaller city-states. These states fought with each other and often went to war.

The Battle of Marathon

Under the rule of Darius I, in 490 BCE, the Persian army subjugated the Athenians at the Battle of Marathon, yet the Athenians managed to achieve a dramatic victory. The Greeks surprised their enemies by running double the distance as the Persians.

The Peloponnesian War

Sparta and Athens fought a long war, called the Peloponnesian War, from 431 to 404 BCE. Only the threat of invasion by outsiders made the Greeks forget their differences and fight on the same side.

Alexander the Great

Their biggest enemy was the Persians, who tried to conquer Greece a few times, but the Greeks managed to fight them off. Ultimately, the Greeks, led by Alexander the Great, defeated the Persian Empire in the 330s BCE.

Greek influence on the western world

After thousands of years, our modern society has many things to be thankful to the Ancient Greeks for:

- The Ancient Greeks developed many of the letters we use today in reading and writing.
- Athenian democracy was a system of government designed to give adult men the right to vote on how the city-state would make rules and laws. Today, we have a similar democracy where we vote for politicians to represent us in government.
- The Olympic Games originated in Olympia, an ancient Greek city-state.
- The Ancient Greeks introduced the world to the tragedy Comedies and tragedies we still enjoy of theatre and entertainment that we enjoy today.
