Argument Structure; Its Syntax and Acquisition 1993

Computational Modeling of Human Language

Acquisition Afra Alishahi, 2011 In doing so computational modeling provides insight into the plausible mechanisms involved in human language acquisition and inspires the development of better language models and techniques This book provides an overview of the main research questions in the field of human language acquisition It reviews the most commonly used computational frameworks methodologies and resources for modeling child language learning and the evaluation techniques used for assessing these computational models The book is aimed at cognitive scientists who want to become familiar with the available computational methods for investigating problems related to human language acquisition as well as computational linguists who are interested in applying their skills to the study of child language acquisition

Language Processing and Acquisition in Languages of Semitic, Root-Based, Morphology Joseph Shimron, 2003-04-28 This book puts together contributions of linguists and psycholinguists whose main interest here is the representation of Semitic words in the mental lexicon of Semitic language speakers The central topic of the book confronts two views about the morphology of Semitic words The point of the argument is Should we see Semitic words morphology as root based or word based The proponents of the root based approach present empirical evidence demonstrating that Semitic language speakers are sensitive to the root and the template as the two basic elements bound morphemes of Semitic words Those supporting the word based approach present arguments to the effect that Semitic word formation is not based on the merging of roots and templates but that Semitic words are comprised of word stems and affixes like we find in Indo European languages The variety of evidence and arguments for each claim should force the interested readers to reconsider their views on Semitic morphology
