Biotechnology Issues For Developing Countries:

Biotechnology: Economic and Social Aspects E. J. DaSilva, C. Ratledge, A. Sasson, 2009-11-05 This book deals with the important issues involved in developing biotechnologically based industries in developing countries. The science and most of the techniques are well established and it is often possible to obtain the desired finance. This book however examines the sorts of choices that a developing country has to make to go ahead with projects and their likely socio economic consequences. Each of the chapters in this book is written by experts in their field and discusses the current biotechnologically based industries and their state of development, their suitability for various economies and the problems associated with developing them. Other chapters discuss environmental questions and further socio economic factors that need to be considered in order to bring about successful wealth creation in these countries.

The International Politics of Genetically Modified Food R. Falkner, 2015-12-11 Genetically modified food is at the heart of a new global conflict over how to govern risky technologies in an era of globalization. This timely collection brings together experts from the fields of IR, environmental studies, trade and law to examine the sources of international friction and to explore the prospects for international co operation.

Agricultural Biotechnology in Developing Countries Matin Qaim, Anatole F. Krattiger, Joachim von Braun, 2013-03-09 Biotechnology offers great potential to contribute to sustainable agricultural growth, food security and poverty alleviation in developing countries. Yet there are economic and institutional constraints at national and international levels that inhibit the poor people's access to appropriate biotechnological innovations.

Agricultural Biotechnology in Developing Countries: Towards Optimizing the Benefits for the Poor addresses the major constraints. Twenty three chapters written by a wide range of scholars and stake holders provide an up to date analysis of agricultural biotechnology developments in Latin America, Africa and Asia. Besides the expected economic and social impacts, the challenges for an adjustment of the international research structure are discussed with a special focus on intellectual property rights and the roles of the main research organizations. Harnessing the comparative advantages of the public and private sectors through innovative partnerships is the only way forward to optimize the benefits of biotechnology for the poor. The book will be an invaluable resource for both academics and policy makers concerned with agricultural biotechnology in context of developing countries.
