East End Chronicles:

East End Chronicles Ed Glinert, 2005 From Medieval melting pot to Victorian hellhole Blitz bombing target to modern gentrification template the East End has always been London's mysterious alter ego with an identity unlike anywhere else East End Chronicles tells the dark unusual and arcane stories of this curious area as they have never been told before bringing it to life through the streets and characters both well known and obscure that have given the East End its identity through the centuries Here is a place of mystics and mythmakers crime and squalor excess and transgression a tight knit community set apart from the rest of the city because of the industries that the rest of London didn't want that absorbed wave upon wave of immigrants seeking shelter from persecution that provided fertile terrain for political activists and philanthropists as well as common card sharps extortionists opium addicts gangsters and the most notorious criminal of all Jack the Ripper for whose murders East End Chronicles contains an intriguing new theory An East-end chronicle, St.

George's-in-the-East parish and parish church Robert Henry Hadden, 1880 Occult London Merlin Coverley, 2008-06-01 More than any other city London has a secret history concealed from view Unearthing the secret city and its forgotten inhabitants this rediscovery encompasses a historical panorama from the Elizabethan age to the present day introducing the magic of Dr Dee and Simon Forman the rise of the Kabbalah and the occult designs of Wren and Hawksmoor Elsewhere figures such as Spring Heeled Jack and the Highgate Vampyre and occult organizations from the Invisible College to the Golden Dawn are explained and explored Also included are instructions for a series of four walks covering features of occult significance for the Elizabethan 18th century Fin de Si cle and contemporary periods as well as an A to Z geographic dictionary of London's most resonant occult locations The Bengal Diaspora Claire Alexander, Joya Chatterji, Annu Jalais, 2015-11-06 India's partition in 1947 and the creation of Bangladesh in 1971 saw the displacement and resettling of millions of Muslims and Hindus resulting in profound transformations across the region A third of the region's population sought shelter across new borders almost all of them resettling in the Bengal delta itself A similar number were internally displaced while others moved to the Middle East North America and Europe Using a creative interdisciplinary approach combining historical sociological and anthropological approaches to migration and diaspora this book explores the experiences of Bengali Muslim migrants through this period of upheaval and transformation It draws on over 200 interviews conducted in Britain India and Bangladesh tracing migration and settlement within and from the Bengal delta region in the period after 1947 Focussing on migration and diaspora from below it teases out fascinating hidden migrant stories including those of women refugees and displaced people It reveals surprising similarities and important differences in the experience of Muslim migrants in widely different contexts and places whether in the towns and hamlets of Bengal delta or in the cities of Britain Counter posing accounts of the structures that frame migration with the textures of how migrants shape their own movement it examines what it means to make new homes in a context of diaspora The book is also unique in its focus on the experiences of those who stayed behind and in its analysis of ruptures in the migration process. Importantly the book seeks to challenge crude attitudes to Muslim migrants which assume their cultural and religious homogeneity and to humanize contemporary discourses around global migration. This ground breaking new research offers an essential contribution to the field of South Asian Studies, Diaspora Studies and Society and Culture Studies.

Bodies in the Streets: The Somaesthetics of City Life, 2019-08-12

Cities are defined by their complex network of busy streets and the multitudes of people that animate them through physical presence and bodily actions that often differ dramatically elegant window shoppers and homeless beggars protesting crowds and patrolling police. As bodies shape city life so the city's spaces structures economies politics rhythms and atmospheres reciprocally shape the urban soma. This collection of original essays explores the somaesthetic qualities and challenges of city life in Europe Asia Africa and the Americas from a variety of perspectives ranging from philosophy urban theory political theory and gender studies to visual art criminology and the interdisciplinary field of somaesthetics. Together these essays illustrate the aesthetic cultural and political roles and trials of bodies in the city streets.
