

This volume brings together articles by five of the leading scholars in comparative politics. The book focuses in particular on the nature of contemporary democracy and its prospects. The volume begins with a personal analysis of the intellectual, and other political reasons as to why and how Stepan chose to engage in certain critical arguments over the last thirty years. The volume is then divided into three sections, each with a distinctive theme: state and society; constructing politics; and varieties of democracies.

The introduction and articles ask whether, both for intellectual and political reasons, there are strong grounds for questioning both Rawls and Huntington on religion and democracy, Riker on federalism, and Collier on multinationalism. The volume contains articles on civil society; political society; economic society; the military; and a usable state. The possibility of multiple and complementary political identities is argued for. The incentive systems and political practices of the three major constitutional frameworks for democratic government—parliamentarism, presidentialism, and semi-presidentialism are compared and contrasted.

Alfred Stepan is Wallace S. Sayre Professor of Government at Columbia University. In his career he has also been Gladstone Professor of Government at Oxford University and Director of Graduate Studies in Political Science at Yale University. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and of the British Academy.

"A striking demonstration of Alfred Stepan's remarkable combination of analytic range and his career-long commitment to extracting novel insights through interviews with key actors. Big questions, fruitful comparisons, and agenda-setting findings."
