Developing Interactive Skills:

Developing Interactive Skills Neil Rackham, Peter Honey, Michael J. Colbert, 1971 UK Case study of experimental research undertaken in BOAC and International Computers Ltd to illustrate methodology aiming at the improved efficiency of in-plant training in interactive skills. Increased motivation for learning together with relevant behavioural change covers theoretical and technical aspects of the collection and feedback of behavioural data etc. Bibliography pp 44 and 45 diagrams and flow charts Developing Interactive Skills. [Edited By] Neil Rackham, Peter Honey, Michael J. Colbert, Etc Neil Rackham, Michael J. COLBERT, Peter Honey, 1971 Developing Interactive Skills in English, 1997 Designing Instructional Systems A. J. Romiszowski, 2016-01-08 This book deals with large scale or macro level instructional design which is referred to by other authors variously as curriculum development course design training system design or instructional systems design. The emphasis throughout the book is on the application of a systems approach which implies both a way of thinking about the problem and a methodology for seeking and developing solutions. Thus the approach of the book is problem oriented. The successful problem solver requires more than a technique or procedure. He requires experience of similar problems, some general principles that he can apply to the class of problems and a great deal of creativity to develop an optimal method of solving each problem. This book brings together the theories and practical experience that have been built up by instructional technologists over the last two decades, the techniques that are currently most used for the analysis of problems in education and for their solution and a range of new ideas specially developed by the author to encourage the creative element so often missing from educational materials. This book is intended for anyone involved in instructional design. It is designed on a grid structure to facilitate the reader's choice of chapters. Those who wish to gain a general overview may concentrate on the chapters at the theory base and analysis levels. Those more practically concerned with course design will find much of use in the synthesis and evaluation levels. Those who wish simply to discover what's new in this book and its treatment of instructional design will find what they are seeking principally in the analysis and evaluation levels. Producing Instructional Systems A. J. Romiszowski, 2024-02-02 First Published in 1986 This two volume work on the development of instruction is planned as a companion to an earlier book Designing Instructional Systems. This earlier book dealt with the decision making process involved in overall course planning and curriculum design. The present continues on to the micro design stages of lesson and instructional materials development. The work is divided into two volumes. Volume 1 Producing Instructional Systems deals with lesson planning for individualised instruction in the conventional classroom environment as well as planning of all group learning situations, simulations and games. Volume 2 Developing Auto Instructional Materials deals with the development of many different types of materials including programmed instruction, structural communication, various styles of structured writing, audio and audio visual instruction and the many types of computer based materials now being introduced in both education and training. Taken together these two volumes give extensive coverage of practical techniques for the development of instruction

Selecting and Developing Better Managers Hugh McCredie, 2010-04-19 A personal attempt of an experienced researcher/practitioner to bridge the gap between sound theory and effective practice in selecting, developing and coaching better managers Encyclopedia of Development Methods Andrzej Huczynski, 2018-05-08 This title was first published in 2001. The core of this thoroughly revised book is a directory of more than 700 methods. Each entry typically comprises an explanation, a bibliography and cross references. Other features include a review of different approaches to classifying the methods and two valuable appendices: the first is to help practitioners analyse their methods; the second providing details of relevant books, journals and other information sources.

Group Activities to Include Students With Special Needs Julia Wilkins, 2001 This illustrated guide provides teachers with easily referenced tools for any situation and skill level, including skill development categories and icons showing which abilities are needed for each activity.

Peer Relationships and Social Skills in Childhood K.H. Rubin, H.S. Ross, 2012-12-06 Amy Rubin, the seven-year-old daughter of one of this volume's editors, was discussing with her close friend Kristin her teacher's practice of distributing stickers to her classmates for completing their seat work. As the conversation continued, Joshua, Amy's two-year-old brother, although Amy would argue that he more often resembles an albatross around her neck, sauntered up to the older children. He flashed a broad smile, hugged his sister, and then grabbed her book of stickers. Corey Ross, the nine-year-old son of the other editor, was trying to plan a tobogganing party with his friend Claire. The problem facing Corey and Claire was that there were too few toboggans to go around for their grade-four classmates. Jordan, Corey's younger brother, had agreed to lend his toboggan. However, Harriet, Claire's younger sister, and Jordan's close friend had resisted all persuasive attempts to borrow her toboggan. The older children decided that the best strategy was to use Jordan's friendship with Harriet and his good example of sibling generosity in presenting their case to Harriet. Both of these anecdotes exemplify what this volume on peer relationships and social skills is about: Children have friends with whom they discuss issues of perceived social significance. During the early elementary school years, rather than sophisticated conversations and debates concerning topics of reward distribution, altruism, personal perception, social status, sibling relations, and cooperation can be overheard, especially by eavesdropping parents who have professional interests in such matters.

Behaviour Analysis in Training Neil Rackham, Terry Morgan, 1977 This abstract monograph on behavioural analysis and change during training, especially in training courses for supervisors and management development in the UK, describes new teaching methods and evaluation techniques for improving efficiency in plant training by developing interactive skills. It discusses group dynamics, presents several case studies undertaken in BOAC and other companies, and includes survey questionnaires, diagrams, flow charts, and references.
