Spear, 1991-01-01 What I like most about this book is that the authors do not see community colleges as being separate from other parts of post secondary education The usual view of two year colleges is reductionist perceiving them exclusively in functional ways vocational collegiate remedial etc McGrath and

Spear see community colleges as part of the full historical unfolding of educational institutions in the United States and thus critique them as academic institutions This is an important work more intellectually challenging and wide ranging than virtually all books on the subject L Steven Zwerling New York University School of Continuing Education This is a book which will stand out It takes a genuinely fresh integrated approach to a difficult and vexing problem The authors develop a synoptic picture of education in the community college by tracing the ways in which that institution has been shaped The authors present a convincing framework within which they can discuss the past failures of efforts at reform and put forward their own proposals William M Sullivan LaSalle University co author Habits of the Heart The concept of remedialization of the community college is an important contribution to the understanding of community colleges This work is appealing because it draws from and is influenced by a diversity of works in philosophy education theory organization theory and literary analysis I especially appreciate the fact that this book does not proselytize the community college credo nor politicize its function Estela M Bensimon The Pennsylvania State University

The Philosophy of the Christian Curriculum R. J. Rushdoony,2012-10-17 The Christian School represents a break with humanistic education but too often in leaving the state school the Christian educator has carried the state s humanism with him A curriculum is not neutral it is either a course in humanism or training in a God centered faith and life The liberal arts curriculum means literally that course which trains students in the arts of freedom This raises the key question is freedom in and of man or Christ The Christian art of freedom that is the Christian liberal arts curriculum is emphatically not the same as the humanistic one It is urgently necessary for Christian educators to rethink the meaning and nature of the curriculum It should be clear then that whether history science mathematics grammar literature ecology civic duty or law every aspect of curriculum must be reconstructed along Biblical lines The overall objective is for Christian families to prepare and equip themselves for service in the Kingdom of God and this cannot be done without a rethinking of the philosophy of the Christian curriculum In this study Rousas John Rushdoony develops the philosophy of the Christian curriculum It is the pioneering study in this field and it is important reading for all Christian educators Latin prose composition.
