The Clearing Allison Adair, 2022-06-07 Look to the Clearing Susan Frybort, 2021-11-15 Susan Frybort steps into the eye of bewildering times with a fresh collection of encouraging poems that bravely speak to the many facets of life Connections transitions loss and change meet us in the center of our hearts Look to the Clearing will offer a cornerstone of comfort and validation in the moments most needed It will assure you that there is a way out of the dark a promise tucked inside each purposeful season and a calm benevolent grace walking beside you on your path towards home We move through dense forest into open glades on our journey creating experiences of going from shadow to light from enclosure into spaciousness allowing for a different level of perspective appreciation and acceptance Each poem is a loving reminder of a place waiting for you to softly land A place to integrate be nurtured or rest A place of much needed restoration where the sunlight filters through the leaves to offer clarity The Clearing Philip White, 2007 Focusing on transformations of love and self over time and in bereavement White's subjects are autobiographical love marriage the deaths of his father mother and more centrally his first wife Questioning memory and self deception the poems employ language and metaphors drawn from ordinary life Winner Walt McDonald First Book Competition 2007 Provided by publisher The Cabin in the Clearing and Other Poems Benjamin Strattan Parker, 1887 Clearing Dale Zieroth, 1973 Clearing Wendell Berry, 1977 A sequence of poems in which Berry writes of the land he and his wife hold in trust a farm they have tended for years and a new homestead they recently rescued from ecological disaster The Clearing Lisa Hiton, 2022-11-29 A new collection from poet Lisa Hiton Arriving to the pastoral happens repeatedly and full of worry in THE CLEARING For the pastoral stands for the fields of the Holocaust of the imagination of the Midwest of the body and even the empty field of the blank page In the absence of knowing how to properly bury our inheritances of the 20th century Hiton turns to fictive spectacle to narrative invention sensory desires and malleable landscapes as a last gesture toward hope As the intellectual ambitions and fears ramp up the urgency of the body and the refusal to look at it does too Erotic and liturgical the poems in Lisa Hiton's chapbook The Clearing summon a Jewish North Shore of Chicago that shifts under iterative imagined futures and pasts Here we continually mourn the speaker's living father who dies in several different Jewish histories we reach past simple desire all the way inside the speaker's lover to turn her heart over Hiton's evoked intimacies in The Clearing are precarious dangerous and heartbreakingly beautiful in this they match the world's In this dazzling chapbook and all of Hiton's oeuvre I remain grateful for the poet's commitment to capturing the ongoing instability of our safety as Jews as queer women as daughters alongside the blessed profound joys of Jewish queer womanhood Rachel Mennies Lisa Hiton's poems bring me in close then hurt me To heal to recover to touch truths that have been denied she reimagines a family's history Obsessed with death but having no desire to die her speaker pushes herself to see a super bloom out of ash filled ground This sequence moves through tundra heat grief and the surreal It celebrates love across painful expanses that she will not let go It's a celebratory

Trout,2017-09-23 Thanks I ve got this That s what we say when we find out we are born with the gift of free will And we journey on through the dark woods We learn grow try look for light and rest in a clearing in the woods to catch our breath We get up again to journey on until we come face to face with the epiphany that is revealed as its own gift breath breath enough to live one day at a time grateful for the gift It is here that we come to an understanding to find that we are not alone After the death of my mother in 1986 I began to write out the voice of my private heart in poems that mark time and hold the essence of my proof of life After more than 30 years of writing through life the act of collecting these poems and fieldnotes into a book has revealed a spiritual legacy filled with common things such as a longing for love a perpetual return to original love and a commitment to long term love relationships In all chapters of living that call us body and soul Nature Love and
