

Latent Print Development

Why are latent prints developed? The purpose is to make is visible so that it may be preserved and compared. Development of latent fingerprints is a process where positive identification of a criminal may be established.

Fingerprints located at crime scenes can be classified as visible, plastic, or latent prints.

Locating visible or plastic prints at the crime scene normally presents little problem to the investigator, because these prints are usually distinct and visible.

Latent prints on the other hand are difficult to locate
