Biotic Homogenization:

Biotic Homogenization Julie L. Lockwood, Michael L. McKinney, 2001-05-31 Biological homogenization is the dominant process shaping the future global biosphere. As global transportation becomes faster and more frequent, it is inevitable that biotic intermixing will increase. Unique local biotas will become extinct only to be replaced by already widespread biotas that can tolerate human activities. This process is affecting all aspects of our world: language, economies, and ecosystems alike. The ultimate outcome is the loss of uniqueness and the growth of uniformity. In this way, fast food restaurants exist in Moscow and Java; Sparrows breed on Hawaii. Biological homogenization qualifies as a global environmental catastrophe. The Earth has never witnessed such a broad and complete reorganization of species distributions. Conservation Biogeography Richard J. Ladle, Robert J. Whittaker, 2011-06-09 CONSERVATION BIOGEOGRAPHY The Earth's ecosystems are in the midst of an unprecedented period of change as a result of human action. Many habitats have been completely destroyed or divided into tiny fragments; others have been transformed through the introduction of new species or the extinction of native plants and animals while anthropogenic climate change now threatens to completely redraw the geographic map of life on this planet. The urgent need to understand and prescribe solutions to this complicated and interlinked set of pressing conservation issues has led to the transformation of the venerable academic discipline of biogeography—the study of the geographic distribution of animals and plants. The newly emerged sub-discipline of conservation biogeography uses the conceptual tools and methods of biogeography to address real-world conservation problems and to provide predictions about the fate of key species and ecosystems over the next century. This book provides the first comprehensive review of the field in a series of closely interlinked chapters addressing the central issues within this exciting and important subject. Degradation, Ecological Restoration and Adaptive Management of Estuarine Wetlands under Intensifying Global Changes, volume II Tian Xie, Milko Alberto Jorquera, Laibin Huang, Junhong Bai, 2024-07-03 Estuarine wetlands play important roles in providing various ecosystem services such as providing habitat for living organisms, preventing seawater intrusion, conserving biodiversity, regulating microclimate, and promoting nutrient cycling and carbon sequestration. Estuaries are home to many mega-cities such as New York, San Francisco, Shanghai, and Tokyo, accompanied by frequent human activities. These human-induced disturbances have rapidly altered the structure and function of estuarine ecosystems through land reclamation, pollution, overfishing, and altered flows. Moreover, estuarine wetlands have been greatly threatened by intensifying global climate changes, particularly more frequent tsunamis, sea level rise, and large-scale biological invasions, which will not only affect primary and secondary productivity, community composition, and distribution and biodiversity but also natural ecohydrological and biogeochemical processes and will ultimately disrupt ecosystem services. To mitigate such negative impacts, a growing number of estuarine wetland restoration projects have been undertaken in recent years. These projects aim to re-establish a variety of ecological attributes, including community structure, species diversity, and habitat, and ecological processes energy flow and nutrient cycling which implies increased resilience and resistance of estuarine ecosystems to abiotic and biotic stressors However ecological restoration practices are not always satisfactory in the face of uncertainties from intensifying global changes and socioeconomic variation Ecologists biologists environmentalists have been working on finding more effective solutions to restore degraded estuarine wetland ecosystems on a global scale The concepts of nature based solutions adaptive management or ecological networks seem to offer better prospects and are now being used to reframe estuarine restoration on critical uncertainties reduction climate change adaptation and mitigation strategies As the world enters the United Nations Decade of Ecosystem Restoration 2021 2030 countries and organizations around the world will pay greater attention to the innovation of ecological restoration underpinnings to ensure that estuarine restoration achieves its full potential in delivering social and ecological coordination and ultimately sustainable development Therefore it is important to discuss how anthropogenic disturbances and climate change affect estuarine wetlands and how the latest restoration framework can guide future practices towards conserving and restoring the biodiversity of estuarine wetlands

Eco-Industrial Development as an Industrial Strategy Andreas Ch. Braun, Gabriela Espinosa Gutiérrez, Danny Tröger, Thomas Hirth, 2024-12-24 This book reports on the results of a 6 year international collaboration between four universities such as the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology Germany the Universidad de Chile the Universidad Austral de Chile and the Universidad de Concepcion Chile on the topic of Eco Industrial Development i e on how industry can learn from ecosystems in order to increase its sustainability On the one hand this book presents the findings of the projects run by the network of researchers from Chile and Germany including chapters on renewable energy production circular economy sustainable agriculture and social and environmental impact assessment among others On the other hand it highlights the importance of international academic collaboration in order to achieve sustainable transformations in industry while also providing insights into the particular challenges and opportunities of eco industrial development in Chile All in all this book provides both academics and professionals with a timely snapshot on principles and best practices for industrial sustainability and sustainable development

 Richard J. Ladle,2009 Although biodiversity is a relatively new coinage scientists have been studying the subject it describes long before the word s first appearance in the language in the mid 1980s In 1973 for instance the UK Systematics Association held a symposium on The Changing Flora and Fauna of Britain which concluded that not enough attention was being paid to the conservation of rarities a conclusion also reached said the symposium at a meeting of the Linnaean Society some forty years earlier By 1980 the Global 2000 Report to the President published by the US Council on Environmental Quality starkly warned of a diminution of up to one fifth of all species by the turn of the century and there is now a growing consensus that the world faces a biodiversity crisis a potentially catastrophic global loss of genetic ecosystem and most obviously species diversity Indeed especially since the UN Convention on Biological Diversity was promulgated in Rio de Janeiro in 1992 conserving biodiversity has become the principal focus of the global conservation movement Indeed the study of the origins maintenance and protection of diversity has become perhaps the most vibrant offshoot of ecology and conservation studies It is increasingly taught and studied in universities and other research institutions around the world Addressing the need for an authoritative reference work to make sense of this rapidly growing subject and its ever more complex and multidisciplinary corpus of scholarly literature Biodiversity and Conservation is a new title in the Routledge series Critical Concepts in the
