especially football and running Since no similar research had as far as known been attempted this first series of observations on the effect of rowing was regarded as tentative It was doubtful how far the subject would lend itself to study and hence it was thought best not to attempt too much until 1 Boston Medical and Surgical Journal cxli 9 10 cxliv 23 the more promising lines on which to work had been determined Much of the work has been somewhat barren of result while in other directions unexpected facts have been learned and the necessity for further study revealed For example it early became apparent that one of the most important parts of the investigation would concern the nutrition and tissue metabolism but for want of suitable apparatus and in the absence of a chemist to analyze the food and excreta this part of the work was done only in the most superficial way It is hoped that a subsequent investigation will include a much more complete study of these important points The greater part of the work which was thought to be feasible this year was a study of the changes taking place in the heart and kidneys and a series of observations on the weight and temperature and their relation to the general condition of the men The
