Women's Employment in Europe Jill Rubery, Mark Smith, Colette Fagan, 1999 The book aims to provide a systematic and international analysis of key dimensions for understanding women's labour market position and reveals that to assess future trends it is necessary to look beyond the narrow focus of equal opportunities policies to broader issues of labour market conditions regulations and policy developments

Women's Employment in a Comparative Perspective Liset Van Dijk, Tanja Van Der Lippe, These comparative studies by internationally known scholars in the United States Hungary Germany and the Netherlands provide a cross national examination of substantially differing circumstances in hours earnings job level childcare availability parental leave and the like of women's employment The book's dual focus on micro and macro approaches clarifies the extent to which these variances can be ascribed to differences in the institutional context of employment or to the individual characteristics of female employees It thereby provides a valuable contribution both to gender studies and to studies on the sociology of work Women's employment changed dramatically during the second half of the twentieth century Countries in the northern hemisphere have faced similar trends in labor and employment yet there are still many contrasts between them when it comes to women's work In this volume women's employment is studied in different institutional structural and social settings with the intention of exploring the causes of the differences and similarities in women's employment in different countries and at different times Three perspectives are used the macro approach which provides a thorough and focused understanding of the influence of the institutional context on women's work the micro approach which gives insight into the employment behavior of individual women who live in the same social or institutional context and the macro-micro approach which makes clear the relative importance to women's work of both individual characteristics and institutional context While a good deal of information is available on women's employment a cross national comparison over time has been lacking This book fills that all important niche Women's Employment in a Comparative Perspective thus has a special relevance for economists as well as sociologists and social work specialists Tanja Van der Lippe is assistant professor of sociology at the Research School ICS of Utrecht University the Netherlands Liset Van Dijk is senior researcher at the Netherlands Institute for Health Services Research Nivel

Women's Employment in BC: Effects of Government Downsizing and Employment Policy Changes 2001-2004 Sylvia Anne Fuller, 2004 Any errors and the opinions contained in the paper are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the views of the CCPA Overall the availability and generosity of social supports and entitlements has eroded as the government weakens or eliminates key public services and increasingly emphasizes the necessity of individual self-reliance and participation in a de-regulated labour market as the only legitimate route to economic security In so doing we consider not only policy changes that directly affect employment regulations and the availability of particular kinds of employment for women such as the loss of public sector jobs and changes to the provincial Employment Standards Act but also changes that alter the conditions under which women access employment such as changes in post secondary education and childcare policie Higher levels of education are also associated with both higher levels of employment and a smaller gap in men and women s labour force participation rates as documented in Table 3 Women in BC with fewer than eight years of education have only 57 per cent of the employment level of men with the same education while those with an undergraduate degree are employed at 93 per cent of the level of t As a result the of hospital and long term care beds and funding cuts have eliminated number of low income housekeeping services from the home care services received by the children in the regulated disabled and frail elderly in some areas of the province

Resources in Education ,1988 Industrial Change and Women's Employment Elizabeth Garnsey,Liba Paukert,1987 Gender and the Open Method of Coordination Samantha Velluti,2016-04-15 Containing contributions by some of the best known researchers in the field this volume considers the intersection between the Open Method of Coordination OMC a relatively new mode of policy making and gender equality a long standing area of EU policy It draws on a range of disciplinary perspectives to examine the effectiveness of the OMC as a medium for the advancement of gender equality within the EU It also considers gender in the OMC in a variety of contexts and at both a general EU and Member State level Central to the discussion is the concept of gender mainstreaming which proposes that a gender equality perspective should be incorporated at every level and opportunity of EU policy and practice The authors assess how successful this has been in the context of the OMC The book provides a unique and contemporary body of work on the OMC which adds significantly to existing understandings of this form of governance and informs critical debate of EU social governance

Employers' Working-time Policies and Women's Employment Sara Horrell,Jill Rubery,1991 This survey examines how employers organize their working time arrangements why they are organized in this manner the extent to which these arrangements result from production process requirements the nature of demand for their product or service and institutional arrangements

Global Women's Work Beth English,Mary E. Frederickson,Olga Sanmiguel-Valderrama,2018-12-07 This volume considers how women are shaping the global economic landscape through their labor activism and multiple discourses about work Bringing together an interdisciplinary group of international scholars the book offers a gendered examination of work in the global economy and analyses the effects of the 2008 downturn on women s labor force participation and workplace activism The book addresses three key themes exploitation versus opportunity women s agency within the context of changing economic options and women s negotiations and renegotiations of unpaid social reproductive labor This uniquely interdisciplinary and comparative analysis will be crucial reading for anyone with an interest in gender and the post crisis world

Employment Bulletin Illinois. Department of Labor,1930 Employment Bulletin Illinois. Dept. of Labor,1928 Proceedings of the Annual Convention International Association of Public Employment Services,1927 Otto E. Miller, Plaintiff-Respondent, Against Fred W. Smythe, Defendant-Appellant , Changing Business Cycles Stefania Albanesi,2019 This paper studies the impact of changing trends in female labor supply on productivity TFP growth and aggregate business cycles We find that the growth in women s labor supply and relative productivity added substantially to TFP growth from the early 1980s even if it depressed average labor productivity growth contributing to the 1970s productivity slowdown We also show that the lower cyclicity of female hours and their growing share can account for a large fraction of the reduced cyclicity of aggregate hours during the great moderation as well as the decline in the correlation between average labor productivity and hours Finally we show that the discontinued growth in female labor supply starting in the 1990s played a substantial role in the jobless recoveries following the 1990 1991 2001 and 2007 2009 recessions Moreover it depressed aggregate hours output growth and male wages during the late 1990s and mid 2000s expansions These results suggest that continued growth in female employment since the early 1990s would have significantly improved economic performance in the United States
