Child Snatchers:

The Child Snatchers Bobbi Lawrence, Olivia Taylor-Young, 1983 Each year an estimated 100 000 children experience the trauma of being stolen Twenty percent of these children will never be heard from again These children are not kidnapped by strangers They are snatched by one of their divorced or separated parents Often they are taken violently sometimes they are taken at gunpoint occasionally lives are lost And always a parent is left behind struggling with a legal system that prefers to look the other way The Child Snatchers explores this widespread social problem a problem that crosses all boundaries in a deeply personal way with insight and compassion Part One is a true story that dramatizes the seemingly impenetrable maze the vicious act of child snatching erects Part Two is an extensive information and resource guide that shows a clearer path through this maze Back cover

The Child Snatchers Jasmin Newman, 2020-01-09 Child abduction has impacted everyone from royalty to a list movie stars It is estimated that every year at least 500 children will be abducted from Australia overseas Many more will be abducted within our shores making Australia one of the highest ranking parent child abduction hotspots in the world The Child Snatchers takes an investigative look at some of Australia's more notorious cases Sally Faulkner who found herself in a Beirut prison for trying to bring her children back to Australia The four Vincenti sisters brought to Australia and returned to Italy under traumatic circumstances Dorothy Lee Barnett wanted for abduction by the FBI for 20 years finally found on the Sunshine Coast Each of these stories are deeply personal highly complex and frighteningly true Were they a desperate act of protection or a despicable act of revenge The Child Snatchers explores the too often bitter nature of separation and divorce and our heavy reliance on the overburdened Australian Family Law system It brings you the heartfelt true accounts of left behind parents and the children they longed for Some are heart warming successful recoveries others may never see their children again All will leave you questioning everything you thought you knew
