Most readers will be familiar with terminology (from meetings and conferences) that we, the editors, would deem to be incorrect or confusing. In general, we all tend to accept the information conveyed to us without really questioning what the terms truly mean. Therefore, the subsequent chapters discussing the IOLs in question should be studied with this in mind since a lot of familiar terminology will be used in those chapters, which, strictly speaking, may not be in line with the most accurate terminology and classification. The reader is encouraged to read this full article to be mindful of the current confusion surrounding IOL terminology and what the correct terminology should be. This is so that one is better prepared to understand and question the mechanism of action and side effects of IOLs that one is planning to use.

KEYWORDS

presbyopia-correcting, EDoF lenses, increased range of focus, dysphotopias, depth of field

Introduction

When describing intraocular lenses (IOLs) that are used for the management of presbyopia, certain terms are repeated and become embedded, often without question or further enquiry by the listener. Phrases such as “premium IOL, EDoF (extended depth of focus), and “fewer dysphotopias” are well known by the cataract surgery fraternity. But what do these phrases mean and is it correct to use them?

Thomas Eakins and the Cultures of Modernity is the first book to situate Philadelphia s greatest realist painter in relation to the historical discourse of cultural difference In this study Alan C Braddock reveals that modern anthropological perceptions of culture which many art historians attribute to Eakins did not become current until after the artist s death in 1916 Braddock finds in the work of Thomas Eakins a lifelong engagement with aesthetic and social currents that extended well beyond his native city of Philadelphia indicating the persistence of a worldly sensibility long after he had concluded his formative studies in Europe during the 1860s Braddock shows how Eakins developed a localized cosmopolitanism all his own based in Philadelphia but tapped into a global field of visual production Jacket      The Forum , 1928      Practical Radio Telegraphy Arthur Reinhold Nilson, Julius Lawrence Hornung, 1928      The Survey , 1930      The Electric Journal , 1914
