Cervical Cancer Screening in Australia Australian Health Ministers' Advisory Council. Cervical Cancer Screening Evaluation Steering Committee, Heather Mitchell, 1990 Cervical Cancer Screening in Australia Australian Institute of Health, 1991 Economics and Australian Health Policy Gavin Mooney, 2020-08-26 A century ago health services absorbed few resources and provided little benefit Since then advances in medical knowledge and techniques have escalated both the benefits and the costs The affordability of health services is being questioned in even the richest countries and the economic aspects of health policy have become ever more intrusive Australia is no exception with its health system now absorbing 19% of all government tax revenue Familiarity with economic issues such as how to assess health outcomes how to assign resources efficiently and what financial arrangements will promote equity as well as efficiency is essential to understanding health policy This is especially so at a time when the economics of health care are being internationally re examined with new forms of competition challenges to public ownership and case mix funding of hospitals under scrutiny and a re evaluation of the benefits of pharmaceuticals and new technologies underway Economics and Australian Health Policy offers this understanding to readers with and without formal economic training It starts with an introduction to both the economic way of thinking about health systems and the context in which those economic questions are raised the structure of the Australian health system its culture and its patterns of financial flows It then describes and appraises from an economic perspective the major components of the system and the policy issues which arise This collection has been specially commissioned to address both Australia s most pressing policy issues and the needs of public health and health economic policy makers academics commentators and students The list of contributors reads like a who s who in Australian health economics who have been encouraged clearly successfully to write accessibly yet with authority and conviction
