Contemporary Chinese Architects:

New China Architecture Xing Ruan, Patrick Bingham-Hall, 2006-03-15 The spectacular transformation of China in the last decade is symbolized by its architecture. The booming cities of China are evolving at a speed which is hard to comprehend and their skylines have seen a profusion of new architectural styles. An economic metamorphosis and an invasion of Western culture have created a dynamic environment for architecture and construction both at the public and the domestic scale. This push to prosperity has excited architects from around the globe who have seen a unique opportunity to produce remarkable and innovative designs. New China Architecture seizes this moment in time. It documents both the stunning designs of famed architects and the emergence of a whole new generation of Chinese architects. The selected projects cover a broad range of residential homes, public buildings, office towers, and the adaptive reuse of older city precincts. The buildings featured include skyscrapers in Shanghai, the dazzling new designs for the Beijing Olympic Games venues, innovative private houses such as those at the Commune by the Great Wall, and the now mandatory gleaming new airports and city landmarks.

Chinese Contemporary Architecture Kai Cui, Rachel Hu, 2012 Sixteen outstanding contemporary Chinese architects and teams from a state-owned large-scale design firm and privately owned design firms and individual studios are presented in this book. Contemporary Chinese architectural languages and forms which connect history and today with a fusion of Chinese and Western cultures and elements are presented. It records the developing road of contemporary architecture in China with continuous effort by Chinese architects.

Thriving China Helen Liu, 2014-03-01 Thriving China is a collection of recent contemporary Chinese architecture. The 35 projects selected from 16 well-known contemporary Chinese architects reveal a glimpse of the ambition to integrate Western styles alongside a devotion to Chinese heritage. Their efforts in re-interpreting Chinese architecture in a global context can be seen in these projects which include Museums, industrial and Media Parks, Community Cultural and Tourist Buildings.

Contemporary Architecture in China Xiangning Li, L. Xiangning, 2018 Critical analysis of 60 projects from 60 architects in China. Highly illustrated throughout with rich technical details. Architectural exhibition is an important aspect in the study and transmission of architectural culture. The academic thoughts and design styles that influence the trends of global architecture are all established through one or a series of important architectural exhibitions. This book is produced based on the GSD Harvard Graduate School of Design autumn exhibition Towards a Critical Pragmatism: Contemporary Chinese Architecture. It reveals a unique perspective of contemporary Chinese architecture by showcasing 60 works from 60 contemporary architects within five thematic categories: cultural, residential, regeneration, rural, and digital. The selected architects attempt to maintain from the earliest moments of the design process to its finished outcome a certain level of critical thinking and quality. It is a record of the continuous evolution and growth of contemporary Chinese architecture and hopes to open up a new avenue from which to encourage further conversation regarding both the present and future state of China's architecture culture.

M8 in China Peter Cachola Schmal, Wenjun

Zhi, 2009 M8 in China shows a surprising range of work by contemporary Chinese architects. This publication presents eight private flexibly operating offices of a completely new generation of architects whose works reveal some fascinating connections between tradition and the western avantgarde. Almost all the designs are characterised by great sensitivity towards regional and historical references while simultaneously integrating traditional techniques of craftsmanship and modern know how. Whether it is an artists residence demonstrating exciting interplay between volume and empty space and light and shadow or a museum with a facade made of bamboo clad concrete like a massive artificial cliff or a teahouse at the foot of a mountain with a traditional wooden roof and regional slate walls all twenty four selected projects represent impressive evidence of the high quality of a new Chinese architectural language that has long established its approach within the global context.

Mapping China Li Xiangning, 2015-05-01 This publication will present and review the architectural climate and practice progress of contemporary Chinese architecture during the first decade of the new millennium.

Investigation on the influence of Chinese traditional elements in contemporary building design by Western architects in China Razak Basri, 2011-08-05 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2010 in the subject Art Architecture History of Construction Atlantic International University course Doctorate in Architecture PhD language English abstract China is transforming in terms of economy social culture and physical development. Due to this rapid urban development in China threatens the urban fabric of Chinese cities. Development has attempted to balance strong Western influences with traditional Chinese forms and has met mixed results. Although it is already in existence of a new current of Chinese regionalism in architecture but this trend could be further improved by careful applications of the principles of architecture. This thesis presents five case studies of current Chinese completed building projects in two major urban settings Beijing and Shanghai designed by Western architects. Each case study is examined in each of the basic elements of architecture in relation to traditions and modern architecture. These case studies are then used as the foundation for specific recommendations for future development of contemporary Chinese architectural regionalism in particular focusing on ways to integrate traditional or vernacular techniques devices and forms with modern needs modern technologies and foreign influences in order to enhance the regional culture and built environment. There is distinction made between Beijing and Shanghai in which Beijing is more of a historic city emphasizing Chinese government while Shanghai is more of an economic nerve of China emphasizing trade finance and international business. Together the two cities form the forefront of the built environment showcase of China.
