Rome is one of the world's greatest archaeological sites preserving many major monuments of the classical past. It is also a city with an important post-Roman history and home to both the papacy and the modern Italian state. Archaeologists have studied the ruins and popes and politicians have used them for propaganda programs. Developers and preservationists have fought over what should and should not be preserved. This book tells the story of those complex interacting developments over the past three centuries from the days of the Grand Tour through the arrival of the fascists which saw more destruction but also an unprecedented use of the remains for political propaganda. In post-war Rome urban development predominated over archaeological preservation and much was lost. However, starting in the 1970s preservationists have fought back, saving much and making the city into Europe's most important case study in historical preservation and historical loss.

Rome Stephen L. Dyson, 2010-06-14 Stephen L. Dyson has spent a lifetime studying and teaching the history of ancient Rome. That unparalleled knowledge is reflected in his magisterial overview of the Eternal City. Rather than look only at the physical development of the city—its buildings, monuments, and urban spaces—Dyson also explores its social, economic, and cultural histories. This unique approach situates Rome against a background of comparative urban history and theory, allowing Dyson to examine the dynamic society that once thrived there. In his personal effort to reconstruct the city, Dyson populates its streets with the hurried politicians, hawking vendors, and animated students that once lived, worked, and studied there, bringing the ancient city to life for a new generation of students and tourists. Dyson follows Rome as it developed between the third century BC and the fourth century AD, dividing the great megalopolis into distinct neighborhoods and locales. He shows how these communities, each with its own unique customs and colorful inhabitants, eventually grew into the great imperial capital of the Italian Empire. Dyson integrates the full range of sources available—literary, artistic, epigraphic, and archaeological—to create a comprehensive history of the monumental city. In doing so, he offers a dramatic picture of a complex and changing urban center that, despite its flaws, flourished for centuries.

No serious study of ancient Roman topography and its monuments is undertaken without consulting the work of Rodolfo Lanciani. 1845-1929 the archaeologist and scholar of ancient Rome. His Forma Urbis Romae, a large map published in sections between 1893 and 1901, captures all that was then known of the existence of the built world in the city. His multi-volumed Storia degli Scavi 1902-1913 is a formidable reference work filled with notices of archaeological finds made in Rome from c. 1000 to 1870. Beginning in c. 1871 Lanciani provided innumerable articles and notes for two primary journals published by the Italian state and Rome's municipal government, respectively: Notizie degli Scavi and Buletino della Commissione archeologica comunale di Roma on artifacts or buildings being freshly unearthed in Rome In addition he wrote English language books and articles using the recent discoveries to educate an Anglo American audience about ancient Roman culture Although his life has been fully examined by Domenico Palombi in 2006 a rigorous examination of Lancianis formidable scholarly production has not yet been undertaken This monograph will do this positioning some of his fascinations interpretations and presentations of ancient Rome within a broad context of historical and cultural events in late 19th early 20th century Rome It scrutinizes Lancianis published work with the following in mind the subtle transformations in the practice of archaeology in Italy the extreme destruction of ancient Rome during the construction of the modern capital the variable oversight of the bureaucratic archaeological services in Rome and the heated political discourse over the ownership and display of cultural patrimony in the new nation In addition it takes into account that Lanciani s publications significantly contributed and responded to the interests of a nexus of international scholars archaeologists collectors and museum professionals including those from the United States Publisher The Academy and Literature ,1879 The Journal of Roman Studies ,1930 Includes proceedings of the society report of the council lists of members etc Academy and Literature Charles Edward Cutts Birch Appleton, Charles Edward Doble, James Sutherland Cotton, Charles Lewis Hind, William Teignmouth Shore, Alfred Bruce Douglas, Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett, Thomas William Hodgson Crosland, 1879 Francis Davis Millet Memorial Meeting American Federation of Arts, 1912 The Antiquaries Journal ,1929
