Designing For Aging Patterns Of Use:

Designing for Aging Sandra C. Howell, 1980 This book provides guidelines for the design process based upon actual tenant behaviors and uses of space in housing for older people It sets forth new or neglected issues which should concern program planners housing developers and designers with regard to the impact and future marketability of these special purpose settings A product of a five year HEW study which won the 1979 Progressive Architecture Award Competition in architectural research this book contains the behavioral evidence on which alternative design solutions ought to be decided Designing for Aging describes and interprets the responses of a large national sample of residents living in apartment buildings across the United States which conform to Federal Minimum Property Standards In addition an in depth analysis of carefully selected specific spaces and their use by tenants was conducted in Cambridge Massachusetts sites Hundreds of hours of research time were spent in on site observations and interviews with older inhabitants of government subsidized housing The techniques used to collect and analyze data are made explicit throughout the book for the benefit of professional readers and also in an attempt to demystify the research process and to open it to critical review Howell notes the most important point that this material should convey is that older people need variations in the space in which they live She argues that this necessitates not so much additional square footage as more careful spatial definition on the part of designers

S.C. Howell, 1980 Design for Aging Aia Task Force on Aging, 1987 Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population Victor Regnier, 2018-08-06 Longer lifespans and the needs of the oldest old are challenging the senior living industry to find bold and compassionate solutions to combine programs and services with housing Victor Regnier s latest research provides a thoughtful and insightful roadmap that arrays new ways of thinking from small scale settings to community based options International case studies offer possible solutions with the best thinking from around the globe all with Vic s unique perspective of extracting themes and concepts that are broadly applicable and essential to addressing the needs of those that live on life s fragile edge David Hoglund FAIA Supporting the independence of the oldest old is a tough problem Victor Regnier addresses in his latest book on aging and housing Like previous work Victor relies on the best practices of northern Europeans to outline a three prong approach First providing extremely comprehensive home care services in an apartment for life setting Second reforming the conventional nursing home by exploring small group style accommodations Third combining new technology with community based services to age in place Case studies document the experiences of others in making these programs work here and abroad The magnitude of the 90 and 100 population increases in the next 50 years make it clear how important it is to address this concern today Edward Steinfeld Darch The movement of health care from the institution to the home is a theme that Regnier identifies as one of the most important lessons in rethinking the issue of how to support the ever growing and increasingly aged older population here and abroad He examines simple but profound approaches we can take in making long term care a more humane proposition Familiar themes like humanizing technology and optimizing the impact of the natural environment are brought together with clear policy thinking about what we need to do The timing is good because the impact of this growing segment of society will have major repercussions on health care for the next 50 70 years Stephan Verderber Ph D A comprehensive guide to designing housing for the world s aging population The dilemma of helping older people maintain their independence through better housing with services is growing This book presents innovative solutions for those who create and provide housing for the world s increasingly longer living population By focusing on three specific housing and service arrangements it offers alternatives that provide greater freedom of choice than the current living arrangements that exist today It presents selected examples of housing and service solutions from the US Sweden Denmark and the Netherlands to stimulate thinking about the possibilities of community based service models Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population looks at a trio of options for housing the oldest old the Dutch Apartment Condo for Life Model AFL decentralized Small Green Houses and the provision of enhanced personal and health care for people who want to stay in their own home It offers unique and eye opening chapters covering what older people want what age changes affect independence demographics and living arrangements how long term care is defined concepts and objectives for housing the frail care giving and management practices that avoid an institutional lifestyle innovative case studies programs that encourage staying at home with service assistance therapeutic use of outdoor spaces how technology will help people stay independent and more Based on the author s numerous conversations with other experts as well as his examinations of high quality settings from Northern Europe and the US Building case study examples showcase innovative and compassionate solutions In depth coverage of three major systems that work Examines successful programs such as PACE Friendly Cities NORC and the Village to Village Network to demonstrate the progress made in helping older frail people stay in their own homes for as long as possible Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population Redefining Assisted Living for the Mentally and Physically Frail is an important book for those who create design and manage assisted living and skilled nursing facilities as well as for those who set policies regarding health and personal care for our world s aging society Housing and Planning References ,1981
