Dynamics Of The Language Classroom:

The Dynamics of the Language Classroom Ian Tudor, 2001 Group dynamics in the language classroom Zoltan Dörnyei, Tim Murphey, 2003 Understanding the Dynamics of Classroom Communication Sungbae Ko, 2013-02-22

Conversational participants in the classroom are not ordinary conversationalists but conversationalists in a pedagogical multiparty community. A different speech exchange system may produce different problems and different opportunities of sequential organisation when we shift our attention from ordinary conversation to a different speech exchange system. Understanding the Dynamics of Classroom Communication provides much needed descriptions of communication within language classrooms which acknowledge the importance of what teachers and students bring to the class environment as well as what actually occurs during face to face communication within the classroom. Using authentic naturally occurring data this book offers new insights into the sequencing of patterns of interaction that occur between individuals engaged in dynamic co participation beyond the properties of individual learner language. In the final chapter some implications for Second Language Acquisition are also discussed.

Opening Dialogue Martin Nystrand, 1997. Opening Dialogue examines the effects of classroom discourse on learning in 8th and 9th grade literature classes with broad implications for all grade levels and subjects. Dozens of schools and thousands of students participated in this study the largest in the field. Contents: Dialogic Instruction When Recitation Becomes Conversation, The Big Picture, Language and Learning in Hundreds of English Lessons, A Closer Look at Authentic Interaction, Profiles of Student Teacher Talk in Two Classrooms, What's a Teacher to Do.

Interpersonal Dynamics in Second Language Education Madeline E. Ehrman, Zoltan Dörnyei, 1998-08-04. Until now relatively little research on interpersonal processes and group dynamics addressed the educational domain particularly second language education. This book fills the gap by synthesizing diverse aspects of interpersonal and group psychology and exploring conscious and unconscious processes that affect learning and teaching. Drawing on humanistic social and clinical psychology it addresses unconscious communication among people, group development, class climate, psychological characteristics of effective classroom groups, leadership roles, interpersonal attraction and conflicts and the relationship of these to learner autonomy and collaborative learning. The authors examine the contributions of the mental health branches of counseling and clinical psychology to our understanding of how teachers, learners and a variety of figures who many never enter the classroom interact with each other to make second language learning more or less effective. In particular the authors show how the unconscious scripts can cause unproductive conflict, demotivation and eventual aversion to language learning. Moreover the text shows how learning can be facilitated by appropriate use of interpersonal dynamics. Due to its interdisciplinary nature this book will be of interest to teacher educators and practicing teachers, researchers, undergraduate and graduate students, school administrators and supervisors of educational programs and many learners themselves. In addition since the main focus of the book is the affective foundation of the teaching learning process this material will be relevant to non language teachers and clinical practitioners interested in educational issues as well as graduate students in training for those professions

Classroom Dynamics Jill Hadfield,2013-07-15 This very popular series gives teachers practical advice and guidance together with resource ideas and materials for the classroom

Motivational Dynamics in Language Learning Zoltán Dörnyei,Peter D. MacIntyre,Alastair Henry,2014-10-14 This landmark volume offers a collection of conceptual papers and empirical research studies that investigate the dynamics of language learning motivation from a complex dynamic systems perspective The contributors include some of the most well established scholars from three continents all addressing the question of how we can understand motivation if we perceive it as continuously changing and evolving rather than as a fixed learner trait The data based studies also provide useful research models and templates for graduate students and scholars in the fields of applied linguistics and SLA who are interested in engaging with the intriguing area of examining language learning in a dynamic vein

The Invisible Foreign Language Classroom Laura Dabbs,Betty Lou Leaver,2019-09 An in depth guide for teachers seeking to understand dysfunctional classrooms and create a mathemagenic experience A unique resource based on experience with thousands of language learners Based on Jungian psychology using MBTI categories with a passing reference to equivalentents in Socionics thie book presents an explanation behind dysfunctional language classrooms though much could apply to any K 16 classroom and provides a heuristic for managing the classroom successfully For each MBTI type there is a section posing a teacher of that type and a classrom of randomly gathered types as in real life A discussion follows as to the source of any dysfunction the way to accommodate all learners an exploration of the probable comfort level of that teacher and a posed question as to what would be the case if the class were the same but the teacher the polar opposite Meant for application by teachers and for use in faculty development it is a book that takes readers through the analytic process to arrive at their own heuristic in approaching their classrooms Real life examples are provided for many of the personality types
