Bureau of the Census, 1927 Suicide in East German Literature Robert Blankenship, 2017 The many fictional suicides in the literature of the German Democratic Republic have been greatly misunderstood The common assumption is that authoritarian oppression in East Germany led to an anomalous abundance of real suicides so that fictional suicides in GDR literature constitute a simple realistic reflection of East German society Robert Blankenship challenges this assumption by providing both a history of suicide in GDR literature and close readings of individual texts revealing that suicides in GDR literature rather than simply reflecting historical suicides contain rich literary attributes such as intertextuality haunting epistolarity and unorthodox narrative strategies Such literariness offered subversive potential beyond suggesting that real people killed themselves in a communist country This first book length study of fictional suicides in East German literature provides insight into the complex and dynamic rhetoric of the GDR Blankenship s underlying claim is that GDR literature ought to be read as literature with literary methodology not despite the country s politically and rhetorically charged nature but precisely because of it Suicide in East German Literature will be of interest to scholars of GDR literature humanities oriented scholars of suicide and those who are interested in the complex relationship between literature and history

Support the Troops Katharine M. Millar, 2022 In Support the Troops Katharine M Millar provides an empirical overview of support the troops discourses in the US and UK during the early years of the global war on terror 2001 2010 As Millar argues seemingly stable understandings of the relationship between military service citizenship and gender norms are being unsettled by changes in warfare Millar asserts that military support acts as a new form of military service which serves to limit anti war dissent plays a crucial role in naturalizing the violence of the transnational liberal order and recasts war as an internal issue of solidarity and loyalty This is the first work to systematically examine support the troops as a distinct social phenomenon offering a novel reading of this discourse through a gendered lens that places it in historical and transnational context
