Casting Out Anger:

Casting Out the Spirit of Anger Bishop Climate Irungu, 2017-11-06 Have you been suffering from bouts of rage and anger that often lead you to make foolish decisions that you later regret When something upsets you do you immediately feel enraged and out of control Do you wish that you could act differently In his new book Casting Out The Spirit of Anger you ll discover how to respond to anger instead of reacting to it This normal emotion can often quickly cause us to forfeit what God has for us if we are not careful But now you ll be able to take control of what s been controlling you You ll discover The three friends of anger How to identify the spirit of anger in your life How the spirit of anger operates Get this Book and Cast out the spirit of anger once and for all so that you can start enjoying your life and all that God has given you Psychiatric

Contours Nancy Rose Hunt, Hubertus Büschel, 2024-03-08 Psychiatric Contours investigates new histories of psychiatry derangement and agitated subjectivities in colonial and decolonizing Africa Thunderstruck! Peter J. Bellini, 2023-04-18 This book is a historical and theological look into the deliverance and exorcism ministry of John Wesley It examines how Wesley understood the phenomenon of deliverance and his own practice of it in terms of ordinary and extraordinary gifts The text looks at how Wesley understood deliverance in general in relation to salvation and how he understood an aspect of deliverance that involved expulsion of demons Further the book assesses how contemporary Wesleyans and Christians in general can apply Wesley s theology and practice to deliverance ministry today Practices like baptismal vows and the use of the gifts of the Holy Spirit are explored in the life of the believer today in terms of deliverance Religious Belief and

Emotional Transformation Paul Lauritzen, 1992 Even a cursory reading of contemporary moral philosophy and theological ethics reveals that discussions in these disciplines are often far removed from the actual experiences of individuals struggling to live morally One reason for this is the general silence in most modern ethical theory about the place of emotions in the moral life In this study of the possibility of emotional moral transformation through religious belief and practice Paul Lauritzen breaks this silence and attempts to explain both why emotions have been ignored and why they must be reclaimed Drawing on work in philosophical psychology cultural anthropology and religious studies Lauritzen develops an account of emotions and of the self that allows us to see how a system of religious belief and practice may dramatically transform the emotional life of the believer He argues that emotions are not biologically basic experiences invariant from culture to culture but rather are culturally mediated artifacts that are inescapably tied to communities of belief and practice that sustain particular understandings of the self and its world To this end Lauritzen sketches a social constructivist account of human emotions and analyzes the emotion of anger in detail By comparing anger as it is found in our culture with accounts of anger in certain non Western societies the author demonstrates that emotions are crucially shaped in communities of belief and practice and are thus open to transformation with a change in belief and practice This possibility is explored at length by examining the way in which a framework of retributive justice structures the experience of anger in our culture According to

Lauritzen this framework presupposes that the human condition is characterized by limited resources on the one hand and by limited generosity on the other Against this background anger will appear to be a natural retributive response to violations of individuals rights The author concludes the study by showing how given particular religious views about human life and history the framework of retributive justice may be transformed or transcended in ways that dramatically affect the emotional life of the believer
