important and interesting liturgical books surviving from the early middle ages It is the best known example of the Gallican type of missal attesting therefore to the distinctive liturgical practices which were widespread in Merovingian and Frankish churches during the seventh and eighth centuries before these began to be replaced by the Roman practices including use of Gregorian missals in various forms during the period of Charlemagne's reforms. In the opinion of modern palaeographers the Bobbio Missal was written somewhere in northern Italy in the mid eighth century. Although it was long regarded as a witness to Irish liturgical practice it is now considered as essentially Gallican but incorporating various prayers of Gelasian origin. Palaeographically the manuscript now Paris Bibliothèque Nationale lat 13246 is of great interest being written in an idiosyncratic mixture of uncial and minuscule by an Italian scribe neither literate nor well trained.
