The New Politics of Class Geoffrey Evans, James Tilley, 2017-02-16 This book explores the new politics of class in 21st century Britain It shows how the changing shape of the class structure since 1945 has led political parties to change which has both reduced class voting and increased class non voting This argument is developed in three stages The first is to show that there has been enormous social continuity in class divisions The authors demonstrate this using extensive evidence on class and educational inequality perceptions of inequality identity and awareness and political attitudes over more than fifty years The second stage is to show that there has been enormous political change in response to changing class sizes Party policies politicians rhetoric and the social composition of political elites have radically altered Parties offer similar policies appeal less to specific classes and are populated by people from more similar backgrounds Simultaneously the mass media have stopped talking about the politics of class The third stage is to show that these political changes have had three major consequences First as Labour and the Conservatives became more similar class differences in party preferences disappeared Second new parties most notably UKIP have taken working class voters from the mainstream parties Third and most importantly the lack of choice offered by the mainstream parties has led to a huge increase in class based abstention from voting Working class people have become much less likely to vote In that sense Britain appears to have followed the US down a path of working class political exclusion ultimately undermining the representativeness of our democracy They conclude with a discussion of the Brexit referendum and the role that working class alienation played in its historic outcome
