DeAngelis, Jerome B. Posner, 2009 Patients with cancer can suffer from a bewildering variety of neurologic signs and symptoms The neurologic symptoms are often more disabling than the primary cancer Symptoms including confusion seizures pain and paralysis may be a result of either metastases to the nervous system or one of several nonmetastatic complications of cancer The physician who promptly recognizes neurologic symptoms occurring in a patient with cancer and makes an early diagnosis may prevent the symptoms from becoming permanently disabling or sometimes lethal This monograph an update of the first edition published in 1995 is divided into 3 sections The first classifies the wide variety of disorders that can cause neurologic symptoms the patient with cancer discusses the pathophysiology of nervous system metastases the pathophysiology and treatment of brain edema and the approach to supportive care of common neurologic symptoms such as seizures pain and side effects of commonly used supportive care agents The second section is devoted to nervous system metastases addressing in turn brain spinal cord meningeal and cranial and peripheral nerve metastases describing clinical symptoms approach to diagnosis and current treatment The third section addresses several nonmetastatic complications of cancer and includes sections on vascular disease infections metabolic and nutritional disorders side chemotherapy radiation and other diagnostic and therapeutic procedures The final chapter addresses paraneoplastic syndromes The book is intended for practicing oncologists neurologists neurosurgeons and radiation oncologists as well as internists who treated patients with cancer Our attempt was to write a book that would assist oncologists in understanding neurologic problems and neurologists in understanding oncologic problems The book is also intended for physicians training to specialize in any of the above areas It includes a practical approach to the diagnosis and management of patients with neurologic disease who are with known to have cancer or in whom cancer is suspected

Cancer in the Nervous System Victor A. Levin, 2002 Cancer in the Nervous System Second Edition is a unique text for practicing physicians physicians in training and other health care professionals who work with cancer patients It is an edited book composed of integrated chapters on the management of specific cancers that affect the brain and spinal cord the secondary effects of systemic cancers on the central and peripheral nervous system the effect of radiation and chemotherapy on the central and peripheral nervous system the psychosocial impact on cancer and approaches to its management the physical and cognitive rehabilitation of the cancer patient and approaches to the control of pain in the cancer patient The decision to make this textbook broad in scope was purposeful It was developed on the premise that no one individual could be truly expert in all the diverse fields that impinge on the nervous system and psyche as well as clinical and experimental oncology With that purpose in mind this textbook brings together the expert opinion and clinical guidelines from basic cancer biology neurology neurosurgery pathology radiology radiation therapy medical oncology psychiatry neuropsychology pain and symptom management and rehabilitative medicine

Effects of Cancer Treatment on the Nervous System, Volume 1 Wolfgang Grisold, Stefan Oberndorfer, Guido Cavaletti, Riccardo Soffietti, 2020-09-28 This first volume describes the epidemiology of cancer development of drugs chemotherapy and surgical therapy and the side effects of therapies and differential diagnoses It shows that the diagnosis of side effects needs to be supported by scales and scores to grade their extent and presents a number of tools and methods that can be used to assess the focal and generalized effects of chemotherapy on the central and peripheral nervous system Cancer is often associated with pain and is a frequent issue in patients with chemotherapy induced neuropathy The participation of patients in studies and their influence on study design is important Patient support groups have been formed for several forms of cancer and are helpful in dispensing advice The treatment of cancer patients must include activities of daily living and quality of life Often palliative care and end of life care are part of the disease trajectory As this book shows patients do not have equal access to cancer treatment around the world and often basic issues as diagnosis treatment are lacking Cancer and the Nervous
