

ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION

BASICS OF ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION

1.1 Introduction

Our mounting concern with the environment is not just for ourselves, but for the entire mankind now existing and the generations to follow. This agreed that children are nation's greatest resource and that the future of civilization depends on them.

There has been sudden increase in the activities for Environmental Education (E.E) during the last two decades. This has resulted in the development of different kinds of curricula, out of school activities and literature. The purpose is to regenerate man's interest in preservation, conservation and improvement of the environment before it is too late and reaches the point of no return. EE has been perceived differently by various Educationalist and thinkers. They differ in its objectives, the kinds of activities that are used to achieve the objectives and resources to attain these ends. It is the vastness and variety of the area of E.E. that necessitates taking a holistic view of the various aspects of E.E. This will help us to see its strength and weakness and draw conclusions for the future. The purpose is to make a review of the situation in this context and examine different roles Played by E.E. at school level and see how these are achieved. Moreover, it is of interest to see how E.E. is moulded in different circumstances such as those present in the wide spectrum of developing and developed countries. It is common to use the term 'environmental education' for different meanings. For the sake of clarity and to avoid ambiguity it is necessary to state, at least in brief, the meanings of EE in our context. This will be done here first.
