Colonial Tactics and Everyday Life Yuxin Ma, 2023-01-17 Following the Japanese invasion of northeast China in 1931 the occupying authorities established the Manchuria Film Association to promote film production efficiency and serve Japan s propaganda needs Manchuria Film Association had two tasks to make national policy films as part of a cultural mission of educating Chinese in Manchukuo the puppet state created in 1932 on the special relationship between Japan and the region and to block the exhibition of Chinese films from Shanghai that contained anti Japanese messages The corporation relied on Japanese capital technology and film expertise but it also employed many Chinese filmmakers After the withdrawal of Japanese forces in 1945 many of these individuals were portrayed as either exploited victims or traitorous collaborators Yuxin Ma seeks to move the conversation beyond such simplistic and inaccurate depictions By focusing on the daily challenges and experiences of the Chinese workers at the corporation Ma examines how life was actually lived by people navigating between practical and ideological concerns She illustrates how the inhabitants of Manchukuo navigated social opportunities economic depression educational reforms fascist rule commercial interests practical daily needs and more and reveals ways in which these conflicting preoccupations sometimes manifested as tension and ambiguity on screen In the battle between repression and expression these Chinese actors directors writers and technicians adopted defensive and opportunistic tactics They did so in colonial spaces often rejecting modernist representations of Manchukuo in favor of venerating traditional Chinese culture and values The expertise skills and professional networks they developed extended well beyond the occupation into the postwar period and many individuals reestablished themselves as cinema professionals in the socialist era

A View to a Death in the Morning Matt Cartmill, 1996-10-01

What brought the ape out of the trees and so the man out of the ape was a taste for blood This is how the story went when a few fossils found in Africa in the 1920s seemed to point to hunting as the first human activity among our simian forebears the force behind our upright posture skill with tools domestic arrangements and warlike ways Why on such slim evidence did the theory take hold In this engrossing book Matt Cartmill searches out the origins and the strange allure of the myth of Man the Hunter An exhilarating foray into cultural history A View to a Death in the Morning shows us how hunting has figured in the western imagination from the myth of Artemis to the tale of Bambi and how its evolving image has reflected our own view of ourselves A leading biological anthropologist Cartmill brings remarkable wit and wisdom to his story Beginning with the killer ape theory in its post World War II version he takes us back through literature and history to other versions of the hunting hypothesis Earlier accounts of Man the Hunter drafted in the Renaissance reveal a growing uneasiness with humanity's supposed dominion over nature By delving further into the history of hunting from its promotion as a maker of men and builder of character to its image as an aristocratic pastime charged with ritual and eroticism Cartmill shows us how the hunter has always stood between the human domain and the wild his status changing with cultural conceptions of that boundary Cartmill's inquiry leads us through classical antiquity and Christian tradition medieval history Renaissance thought and the Romantic movement to the most recent controversies over wilderness management and animal rights Modern ideas about human dominion find their expression in everything from scientific theories and philosophical assertions to Disney movies and sporting magazines Cartmill's survey of these sources offers fascinating insight into the significance of hunting as a mythic metaphor in recent times particularly after the savagery of the world wars reawakened grievous doubts about man's place in nature A masterpiece of humanistic science A View to a Death in the Morning is also a thoughtful meditation on what it means to be human to stand uncertainly between the wilderness of beast and prey and the peaceable kingdom This richly illustrated book will captivate readers on every side of the dilemma from the most avid hunters to their most vehement opponents to those who simply wonder about the import of hunting in human nature
