

Topic 6. Patterns of urbanisation in developed and developing countries

PATTERN OF URBANISATION IN DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

Urban centres or Cities have been the pacemakers of change from centuries; as they have been the centres of history's great cultural achievements, technological innovations and political movements, the expansion of these cities owing to increase in their population either through processes of natural increase or migration is termed as 'Urbanisation'. 'Urbanisation as a concept became widely established throughout the world with the onset of British agricultural and industrial revolution in the late 18th century as it laid the foundation for the unprecedented growth in urban population over the course of the 19th, both through continued migration from the countryside and due to the tremendous demographic expansion during that period. In England and Wales, 72% of total population was urbanized in 1981 followed by 37% in France, 41% in Prussia and 28% in the United States. The countries of Europe, North America and Oceania which includes New Zealand and Australia form the realm of Developed countries, who today have high levels of urbanisation, accompanied by low urban growth rates.

Urbanization in Developed Countries:

Prior to 1950, the majority of urbanization occurred in developed countries. Rapid urbanization took place during the period of industrialization in Europe and North America in the 19th and early 20th centuries.

The present urban system of developed countries is the evolutionary outcome of more than two millenniums of activities of people living in or migrating to the countries, but it is only between the decades of 1960 and 1990, that the patterns of urbanisation became profoundly evident. The people founded, built and

BOOK JACKET      Marginalization in Globalizing Delhi: Issues of Land, Livelihoods and Health Sanghmitra S. Acharya, Sucharita Sen, Milap Punia, Sunita Reddy, 2016-10-21. This book analyses how developmental projects in a globalizing Delhi have brought about neglect, exclusion, and alienation of certain sections of population while benefiting others. It discusses the physical, economic, and social displacement of people in the city in recent times, which has deprived them of their lands, livelihoods, and access to health care. In Delhi and the National Capital Region, beyond the obvious and apparent image of wide roads, flyovers, the metro rail network, high rises, and glittering malls, globalization has brought about skewed and uneven development. A growing middle class and a significant group of an extremely rich section of population steer the ways in which development strategies are planned and implemented. Furthermore, with government control reducing as is inevitable and consistent with a neoliberal policy framework, private players have entered not only the consumer goods sector but also basic goods and services such as agriculture, health, and education. This book explores the effects of such processes with a specific focus on equity on the marginalized sections of population in a globalizing megacity. It addresses the themes of land, livelihoods, and health as overarching, drawing upon their interlinkages. It traces the changes in the growth of the city in context of these themes and draws inferences from their interconnectedness to examine the current situation of development in Delhi.
