Wine body and Tannin Level

Four red wine styles are often thrown around, but are seldom explained. Wine body defines how the wine feels in your mouth. It's similar to the thickness of the cream of milk. Lighter bodied is very watery, medium bodied is comparable to regular milk, and full bodied is more like cream. Tannins are naturally occurring polyphenols found in plants, seeds, fruit skins and other organic matter. Tannins add dryness, bitterness and astringency in the middle of your tongue and the front part of your mouth.

Dry vs. Sweet

Another way wine is described is with dryness or sweetness. Dryness or sweetness depends on the amount of residual sugar left in the wine. Residual sugar is any natural grape sugars that are left after fermentation. The juice of wine grapes starts out with natural sugars which yeast ferments to create alcohol. At the end of the process yeast uses up the sugar, it is a dry wine. If the fermentation process stops before it uses up all the sugar, there will be more residual sugar, producing a sweet wine.

DESSERT WINES

Champagne
Sparkling wine with a citrus finish.
Best from the Champagne region of France.
Pairs well with: fruits, nuts or crumbles.

Moscato
Light and bubbly with notes of apricot and peach.
Best from pretty much anywhere.
Pairs well with: pretty much anything.

Sherry

Best from Spain, California.
Pairs well with: cheese.

Port
Sweet with flavors of dried fruit, baking, mocha.
Best from Douro Valley region of Portugal.
Pairs well with: Game, cheese, fruits.

Why is dessert wine different?

Dessert wine is different from regular wine because of the sugar level and the alcohol level. These levels can be increased in a few different ways. Sometimes grapes are left on the vine longer than they have natural sugar to create alcohol. This and also of course winemakers can add sugar either before or after fermentation. They can also use a process called chaptalization to increase the alcohol content. Finally, winemakers can remove water to concentrate the sugar, usually by air drying or freezing the grapes.
