City Making Gerald E. Frug, 2001-02-20 American metropolitan areas today are divided into neighborhoods of privilege and poverty often along lines of ethnicity and race City residents traveling through these neighborhoods move from feeling at home to feeling like tourists to feeling so out of place they fear for their security As Gerald Frug shows this divided and inhospitable urban landscape is not simply the result of individual choices about where to live or start a business It is the product of government policies and in particular the policies embedded in legal rules A Harvard law professor and leading expert on urban affairs Frug presents the first ever analysis of how legal rules shape modern cities and outlines a set of alternatives to bring down the walls that now keep city dwellers apart Frug begins by describing how American law treats cities as subdivisions of states and shows how this arrangement has encouraged the separation of metropolitan residents into different sometimes hostile groups He explains in clear accessible language the divisive impact of rules about zoning redevelopment land use and the organization of such city services as education and policing He pays special attention to the underlying role of anxiety about strangers the widespread desire for good schools and the pervasive fear of crime Ultimately Frug calls for replacing the current legal definition of cities with an alternative based on what he calls community building an alternative that gives cities within the same metropolitan region incentives to forge closer links with each other An incisive study of the legal roots of today s urban problems City Making is also an optimistic and compelling blueprint for enabling American cities once again to embrace their historic role of helping people reach an accommodation with those who live in the same geographic area no matter how dissimilar they are

The Art of City Making Charles Landry, 2012-05-16 City making is an art not a formula The skills required to re enchant the city are far wider than the conventional ones like architecture engineering and land use planning There is no simplistic ten point plan but strong principles can help send good city making on its way The vision for 21st century cities must be to be the most imaginative cities for the world rather than in the world This one change of word from in to for gives city making an ethical foundation and value base It helps cities become places of solidarity where the relations between the individual the group outsiders to the city and the planet are in better alignment Following the widespread success of The Creative City this new book aided by international case studies explains how to reassess urban potential so that cities can strengthen their identity and adapt to the changing global terms of trade and mass migration It explores the deeper fault lines paradoxes and strategic dilemmas that make creating the good city so difficult

Creating Future Cities Shane Epting, 2026-03-23 This book fleshes out the idea that everything about the city involves a fight for the good life From how we conceptualize it to its streets and the fiber optic cables beneath them nothing is excluded from creating the cities we want to call home In turn this book continues Shane Epting's ideas developed in Urban Enlightenment and Meaning in the Metropolis It begins with an examination of how scholars define the term city He argues that while cities are often described as ecosystems or technologies these views should be abandoned in most cases Instead Epting maintains that cities are groups of people capable of shaping the built environment and its supporting technologies united by the goal of creating places where people can live their best lives This is the fight for the city That fight involves many elements vital to city living such as streets land use historic preservation and preparation for extreme weather He argues that fighting for the city is not merely about control Rather its purpose is to create environments that foster human flourishing while safeguarding communities against disaster Creating Future Cities will be essential reading for scholars and advanced students in philosophy urban studies and architecture Global City Makers Michael Hoyler,Christof Parnreiter,Allan Watson,2018-09-28 Global City Makers provides an in depth account of the role of powerful economic actors in making and un making global cities Engaging critically and constructively with global urban studies from a relational economic geography perspective the book outlines a renewed agenda for global cities research Focusing on financial services management consultancy real estate commodity trading and maritime industries the detailed studies in this volume are located across the globe to incorporate major world cities such as London New York and Tokyo as well as globalizing cities including Mexico City Hamburg and Mumbai The Making of Urban America John William Reys,2021-10-12 This comprehensive survey of urban growth in America has become a standard work in the field From the early colonial period to the First World War John Reys explores to what extent city planning has been rooted in the nation s tradition showing the extent of European influence on early communities Illustrated by over three hundred reproductions of maps plans and panoramic views this book presents hundreds of American cities and the unique factors affecting their development Official Gazette Philippines,1922 The Making of Civilization Ruth Whitehouse,John Wilkins,1986 Public Service ,1910 Citizens in the Making Through a Program of Pupil Activity Walter L.
